Landslide Kennedy Victory?

Given Wide Edge In Leading Poll

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Observers here are beginning to talk of a possible landslide victory for Senator Kennedy in Tuesday's presidential election. The Senator was reported to be tired and growing hoarse as he and Vice-President Nixon entered the final days of the gruelling campaign trail. But the news for the Democratic candidate was nearly all good. A nationwide poll reflecting opinion in late October gave him a 6 per cent margin over Nixon. Translated into popular votes on election day, this 6 per cent margin would approach the 55 per cent portion of the vote which President Eisenhower received when first elected in 1952.

GOP NOT DISMAYED

Republicans dismissed the poll figures on the ground that the sampling was taken before Nixon's campaign reached its peak. They are placing great store on the effect Eisenhower will have in vigorously pressing his support for Nixon earlier this week before great crowds in New York City and Friday in the heavily-populated industrial cities of Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Reports from Texas Friday spoke of Republican delight there with the sharpness of Nixon's attacks on his opponent. At the same time, political observers here sensed in Kennedy's latest statements the most openly confident mood he has exhibited throughout the long campaign.

Final Campaign Weekend

INSULTS ARE FLYING

NEW YORK (CP)—Verbal brickbats are flying the air as the campaign for the U.S. presidency moved into its last weekend.

Nearly everybody got into the act Friday.

Senator Kennedy, the Democratic candidate, said his opponent, Vice-President Nixon, is trying to ride "someone else's shirttails" into the White House.

President Eisenhower chidingly labelled Kennedy "this young genius."

Former Democratic president Harry Truman dismissed Nixon as "a second-rate politician" who should not be exploiting Eisenhower's "remaining energies" in his bid for office.

Nixon called Kennedy a "Jackie come-lately" and the "pied piper from Boston" whose economic policies "represent the cruelest hoax any politician has ever tried to foist on the American people."

JOHNSON JEERED

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, Kennedy's running mate, ignored some jeering opponents who turned up at a rally at Dallas, Texas, his home state, saying to his wife: "Don't shout back, let everyone see how Nixon runs his campaign."

The candidates hashed over the same issues that have been the crux of their speeches since the start of the campaign. But the language continued to grow stronger as the Nov. 8 voting day drew closer. Sniping at the Republican campaign claim that not one American soldier has died fighting on foreign soil since the Korean War ended under the Eisenhower administration, Kennedy said in Chicago: "The real issue is world freedom or world slavery... stopping the Communist advance which in eight years has penetrated deep into Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America—taking over Cuba itself—without firing a single shot or losing a single soldier."

Kennedy, making his first prediction of the campaign, claimed a "Democratic tide is rising" across the country.

Pistol-Packing Pair Held at Kennedy Meet

CHICAGO (UPI)—A young Puerto Rican totting a loaded pistol fought with police at the crowded gates of the Chicago Stadium Friday night when officers blocked his way to a giant rally for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

A second gun carrier was arrested when he tried to enter the stadium with a revolver in a paper bag. A half-dozen policemen scuffled with the first man, Jaime Cruz Alejandro, 23, before he was disarmed and seized. "Kill him, kill him," shouted the crowd, surging into the stadium. Officers seized a .25-calibre automatic pistol from him.

The Rev. Israel Oabney, 61, a (Negro) minister, was stopped when he tried to enter the stadium with a 38-calibre revolver in a paper bag.

The department also said the United Nations should get on with the job of improving the Congo's welfare and implied it felt the world organization was meddling in Congo politics and should stop.

The department's statement, read to reporters Friday by press officer Lincoln White, was issued in reply to a report submitted to the United Nations by Indian diplomat Rajeshwar Dayal. Hammarskjöld's special representative in the Congo.

A spokesman for the Belgian foreign ministry denounced the report as "unseemly" and "ridiculous."

Dayal charged that Belgian nationals who have returned to the Congo have been among rebel forces there. In some cases, he said, Belgian officers have directed and led the rebels.

Councillor Attacked With Acid

NIPIGON, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police reported today that Dr. E. R. Somerleigh, a Nipigon town councillor, is in a Fort William hospital following an attack Friday night by an unknown assailant who poured acid over his head and face.

The father of five children was attacked in his car immediately after leaving a council meeting in this town 60 miles northwest of the Lakehead, police said.

"Dr. Somerleigh was 'badly burned' and in danger of 'losing his eyesight,'" police said.

Hospital superintendent R. V. Johnson said Dr. Somerleigh is suffering from burns to the head and face. "His lips, nose and throat are badly swollen and his face darkened," he said. Dr. Somerleigh also is suffering from shock but his general condition is satisfactory, the hospital official added.

The doctor told police he immediately stopped the car and the assailant fled. Police found a 16-ounce bottle in the car still containing some liquid, believed to be sulphuric acid. The container and contents have been sent to the provincial crime laboratory in Toronto.

Belgians Wanted

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—The popularity of the United Nations administration in the Congo appears to be slipping fast amid signs that the Congolese want the Belgians to come back.

This may appear ironic in view of the events of last summer. First there were the anti-Belgian independence riots. Then there was the quick reaction of the UN to try to bring order to the former Belgian colony.

One high UN officer who gets around a lot in Leopoldville's African quarter and says he has a finger on grass-roots thinking declared: "In less than a month they'll all want the Belgians to return."

U.S. Voices Faith In Belgian Actions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has voiced its confidence in Belgium's "good faith" in the Congo and criticized a UN report on Belgian's actions in the strife-torn African nation.

The state department disputed charges by an aide of UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld that Belgian nationals returning to the Congo are stirring up new trouble there.

The department also said the United Nations should get on with the job of improving the Congo's welfare and implied it felt the world organization was meddling in Congo politics and should stop.

BANDITS, THUGS, GOONS MAKE HAY IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Fridays, almost a regular field-day for Montreal's underworld, proved no exception this week.

There were six armed holdups, one mugging, and a goon raid on the Chez Patee, a downtown night club, which resulted in $25,000 to $30,000 damage.

The holdups netted bandits a total of $31,800 in cash and cheques but $2,725 was recovered after two suspects were caught by police and taken for questioning.

Nikita Jokes About 'Ouster'

MOSCOW (CP)—Premier Khrushchev made fun today of Western rumors that he had been arrested and deposed.

Smiling broadly as he received Canadian Ambassador David Johnson in the Kremlin, he said: "Well, I am still here."

Johnson told reporters later that Khrushchev and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, whom he saw in a separate meeting, appeared highly amused by the rumors.

Johnson said he was interested in the fact that both men were fully informed about them although nothing has been published here.

"Khrushchev just made fun of them," Johnson said. "He was in very good humor and looked very well."

Johnson, who is soon leaving Moscow had requested a farewell appointment with Khrushchev some time ago but had only half an hour's notice when it was finally arranged.

He said he got the impression that Khrushchev had just returned to Moscow today from a brief holiday but said that the Soviet premier did not specifically say so.

Khrushchev earlier today headed the welcoming at Vnukovo airport to greet Chinese President Liu Shao-chi.

Kasavubu Coming to UN

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—President Joseph Kasavubu notified U.S. Ambassador Clare Timberlake today he will leave for New York Sunday to lead the Congolese delegation at the United Nations Assembly.

Informants said Justin Bomoko, head of the ruling council of commissioners, will accompany him. Bomoko was foreign minister in the cabinet of ex-premier Patrice Lumumba and countersigned Kasavubu's Sept. 5 decree dismissing Lumumba.

Ontario Police Alerted

TORONTO (CP)—Six carloads of United States gangsters have crossed into Canada and police throughout southwest Ontario have been asked to watch for them, police said today.

Deputy Chief Bob Kerr of the Metropolitan Toronto police force said his force was tipped that the six cars "crossed into Canada" Friday.

"We want to see the gentlemen," he said.

He said he knew nothing of reports that the gangsters were in Ontario for a conference to discuss the partitioning of Hamilton-Toronto area crime benefits.

"We don't know why they're here," he said. "Maybe they're visiting friends or attending a funeral."

The Hamilton Spectator earlier today said a "little Appalachian" gangster conference was being held and that Hamilton police were watching for the cars.

The newspaper said the police handled the tip so carefully that the car descriptions were not broadcast in the usual manner.

MET IN 1957

It was three years ago this month that the notorious gangster conference was held in the little town of Appalachin, N.Y. Twenty of the 63 in attendance were imprisoned and fined a total of $130,000 after being found guilty of concealing the true purpose of the gathering.

The Hamilton newspaper quoted Deputy Chief Joseph Thurston of Metropolitan Toronto police as saying that every member of the Toronto force had been given the licence numbers and a full description of the wanted vehicles.

Toronto Police Chief James Mackey said none of the persons being sought here was known to have attended the U.S. crime conference at Appalachin. No names were mentioned.

Border officials said the six cars "looked like they had just been driven out of an expensive showroom."

One was reported to have Pennsylvania licence plates, one New Jersey, one Maryland and three Ohio tags.

Deputy Chief Kerr declined to disclose the route by which the cars entered Canada or who had provided information on them.

Barron's New Book Goes on Sale Monday

Sid Barron's second annual cartoon book, which investigates some of the peculiar aspects of Victorians, will go on general sale Monday.

The cartoons, selected from those which have appeared in The Times during the last year, are published under the title "Barron's Victoria."

This year's edition is entitled "A Second Look." The booklets, priced at $1, will appear in major book-stalls and newsstands Monday and by the end of the week will be in full circulation.

As a special attraction during next week the cartoonist will appear personally at two events to autograph copies.

First occasion will be at Oak Bay High School's Fall Fair on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The whole theme of the fair is based on the strange characters Barron produces.

A stall will be set up with the books on sale, with retail proceeds going to help the funds of the fair.

On Thursday evening, Mr. Barron will be at Eaton's Ltd. bookstall where he will sign copies. Stores are open Thursday night because of the Friday holiday.

Meanwhile mail orders for the books are still open. A convenient coupon for ordering appears on Page 3.

RIBE, Denmark—A Danish shepherd who likes the simple life today celebrated the 10th anniversary of living in a haystack.

Christian Rasmussen, 55, got fed up 10 years ago of moving from one hotel to another during a wandering life as a horsebreeder. He rented an 80-acre patch of land, moved into a haystack on the property and started breeding sheep and raising poultry.

He hollowed out the inside of the big stack and strengthened the inside with timbers. He sleeps on a bed made of bales of hay. His only piece of furniture is a chair.

I've a wonderful view, and I wouldn't go back to hotel rooms or a house again," he said. "After I've been on the road it's good to get back to the haystack."

Despite his primitive home, Rasmussen has become fairly wealthy. He pays 11,000 kroner (about $1,600) a year rent for his land.

"I'm very happy surrounded by my animals," he said. "The hens live inside the haystack with me. The only trouble is that they sometimes lay eggs on the bed."

Medical Report On 'Joy-Rider' Asked by Judge

Magistrate William Ostler ordered a medical report on Melville H. Cornelle, 260 Queens, who pleaded guilty in city police court Friday to taking a car without the owner's consent.

Cornelle took a car from a Yates Street used car lot early Thursday evening and was involved in an accident on Bay Street near Bridge.

The car sheared off a utility pole. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,800 and to the pole at $100.

Cornelle left the scene of the accident before police arrived, but three-quarters of an hour later appeared at the police station and admitted responsibility.

Magistrate Ostler noted that Cornelle had a medical record and remanded him for sentence on Monday.

Flood Mop-Up In U.K. Areas

LONDON (Reuters)—Large areas of southeast England were still under water today but the flood danger appeared to be receding in many areas.

Sandbags were rushed to the Medway Valley area near Maidstone in Kent County in readiness for possible trouble when tide water flows up from the Thames Estuary.

But flooding in Maidstone was receding as soldiers helped mopping-up operations. Traffic was moving along the town's main street today after flooding halted it Friday.

"There were women about," he told a police court Friday.

MIAMI, Fla.—A Miami man answered his wife's divorce suit Friday with a proposal that he be granted possession of their chimpanzee and she have visiting privileges.

Joe Disviscour complained that his wife Betty took the chimp, Mr. Duffy, when she went away with a circus.

Disviscour, a monkey trainer, bought the three-year-old chimp in its infancy. Mr. Duffy learned to eat spaghetti with a fork, dressed up and liked to loll in a lawn chair smoking cigarettes.

LONDON — That fine old school of Harrow—Sir Winston Churchill went there—has outlived Lady Chatterley's Lover. The 600 young men who attend the school have been warned by their headmaster: Any boy found reading it in school will be thrashed.

LONDON—Mrs. Toni Metz, 40, accused her landlord in court yesterday of trying to evict her from her apartment by putting itching powder in her undies while they were being laundered.

DETROIT — "Buddy, can you spare a quarter so I can get my clothes washed?"

Detroiters may be greeted with this line soon if they chance to wander into the skid row section.

A laundromat has been set up in the basement of the St. Thomas Aquinas reading room.

For a quarter, a man can wash up to eight pounds of clothes. Soap and bleach are free as is the use of the dryer.

ALBANY, N.Y. — When a city-ordered wrecking crew razed the roof of a building here and came back to complete the demolition, owner Louis Miller raised the roof, too.

The wreckers were wrecking the wrong building, he complained to city officials.

Miller said he bought the vacant building in June and has been repairing it since.

MAYOR WANTS TO TALK WITH AIRLINES CHIEF

Trans-Canada Air Lines fare boost between Victoria and Vancouver will be discussed by Mayor Percy Scurreh of Victoria and TCA president Gordon McGregor if an appointment can be arranged in Montreal next week.

Mayor Scurreh said Friday he would seek to see Mr. McGregor both to protest the increase, and to discuss comparable increases on other short-haul routes.

"I think maybe we should organize some opposition," the mayor said. "They are just killing their own business between Victoria and Vancouver."

BYELECTION STEAMING UP

Engineer Seeks Tory Nomination

John C. B. Keane, 56, a civil engineer, announced Friday he will seek the Progressive Conservative nomination in the Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election.

He said: "I feel the time has arrived when the Conservative Party should show its hand with the names of those who are willing to carry the Conservative banner in the by-election."

Mr. and Mrs. Keane, Saanich property owners, live at 2439 Currie Road, in Oak Bay. They have two married daughters.

Mr. Keane has been associated as a civil engineer with considerable shipbuilding and wharf terminal development during his 13 years in B.C.

SEVERED OVERSEAS
Born and educated in England, he came to Canada in 1923 and served overseas with the Canadian army, 1940-44. At present he is an instructor with the B.C. education department.

Capt. David Groos will seek the Liberal nomination while Einar Gunderson, former B.C. finance minister, has said he will consider letting his name stand for the Social Credit nomination.

In Vancouver at the B.C. Social Credit League convention, Saanich Social Credit MLA John Tisdale indicated Mr. Gunderson will be opposed if, any bid to win the nomination.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS
"It is only natural people would want to choose a man from their own riding. I understand there will be others running, not only from Saanich, but from Victoria. They are all welcome."

"But the Saanich and Esquimalt membership will decide," he said.

In the afternoon session, Premier Bennett called for a fund to assist the party's campaign in Esquimalt-Saanich.

He said a victory in the by-election would "do more than hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in campaigning in the next election."

It would be a tough campaign, he said, the party was going to put every effort into it.

Jones decided at the last minute to turn out for Tottenham but was limping from the start of the game. He sent a brilliant flying header past Tony Macedo, Fulham's Maltese-born goalkeeper, to give Tottenham a 2-0 lead after Les Allen had scored the first goal.

RUSSIANS SEE MATCH
The Russian team Tiflis Dynamos, just arrived for a tour of Britain, watched Manchester United and Sheffield Wednesday battle to a goalless tie on a sea of mud and in continuous rain. The Russians are due to play Sheffield Monday.

Wednesday's strong defence kept Manchester out, some times when Matt Busby's men appeared certain to score. Once Albert Quizzall lobbed the ball over goalkeeper Roy MacLaren's head and centre half Peter Swan kicked off the goal-line.

Blackpool, at the bottom of the First Division standings until recently, continued its revival with a 6-1 hammering of Cardiff City.

Centre forward Gerry Hitchens shot two fine goals for Aston Villa in a 2-0 victory over Burnley, the club which represents England in the European Cup this season.

PENAL REFORMS

Prisoners To Work Full Day

OTTAWA (CP) — The complexion of the federal penal system is undergoing a gradual change.

Latest attempts at improvement were announced Friday by Justice Minister Fulton. Some grant wide new privileges to convicts. Others will radically change prison atmosphere. Rehabilitation efforts will be stepped up.

Mr. Fulton said the new regulations and programs do not mean mollycoddling the inmates. Chief among the new measures:

Convicts who are now locked up on cells for 14 hours each night will be allowed to associate with fellow inmates in evening groups. They can take part in sports or discussions, join choirs, watch movies or television.

LONGER WORK DAY SET

A minimum seven-hour work day is being launched. It is designed to keep the convict busy as well as to make the institutions self-supporting. Convicts now spend about four hours a day at work and the rest of the day being fed or counted.

Each new convict entering a federal institution will enter a reception area, where he will spend four to eight weeks. This system has two objectives:

1. The convict will be "diagnosed"; he will be given various tests to determine his character, his aptitudes. His education and background will be studied. He will be examined by a psychologist—or, if necessary, by a psychiatrist.

2. He then will be classified for a certain training program and a certain type of institution. Continuing classification will ensure that the convict advances steadily if he responds properly. If he defies the system, it's back to closer custody.

REORIENTATION

As each convict's term nears an end—or when he is ready for parole—he will go through a "pre-release" procedure to reorientate him with the social and community life from which he was cut off by the courts.

Inmates will be allowed to go "outside" for dinners in private homes, will be permitted to attend movies or a hockey game or outside lectures or training classes, will be allowed to interview employers, and in some cases will take a day job outside—returning to custody at night.

"We are convinced of the value and the necessity of this program," Mr. Fulton told a press conference.

Another measure announced by the minister Friday will see the hiring of female nurses for men's prisons. At present there are only about six women in these institutions, and all are clerks or stenographers. There is a shortage of male nurses.

"We hope this will introduce a more normal atmosphere," Mr. Fulton said.

YOUTHS' DARE STARTS RACE BATTLE

MEMPHIS (AP) — Police said an encounter between white and Negro teen-agers touched off a brief but furious uproar in a racially mixed neighborhood here Friday night.

Two riot squads and about 20 patrol cars converged on the area, which has been the scene of previous "gang fights." Five Negro juveniles were picked up and held for questioning.

A 27-year-old man captured by officers was dragged to a squad car screaming, "I'm going to kill every white — in this neighborhood." He was identified as Robert Stovall, 27.

Assistant Police Chief Lee Quianthy said no immediate charge was placed against Stovall. He denied reports that shotguns were fired in the melee.

Quianthy said the trouble apparently started when a group of white youths passing a group of Negro youths was "dared to fight."

NO TIME FOR TALKING IF SUDDEN AGGRESSION

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain Friday conceded that "in circumstances of sudden aggression" she could not be consulted before the United States used Scottish-based Polaris missiles.

Defence Minister Harold Watkinson was replying to Labor complaints about the lack of machinery for British-American consultations on employment of the nuclear missile.

Watkinson revealed the United States has given "a firm assurance" that the Polaris, carried by nuclear-powered submarines, would not be fired in any circumstances in Britain's territorial waters.

Watkinson spoke in a one-day foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons. Labor spokesmen had bitterly criticized the agreement announced Tuesday by Prime Minister Macmillan for the Holy Loch base.

STATEMENT TO JURY PROTESTED

Judge Says Finch Lied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jurors are still divided, but the judge has told them in a taut and turbulent session of the Finch trial that he believes a murder was committed and he doesn't believe the defendants.

As they opened their 17th day of deliberation, at the second trial of Dr. R. Bernard Finch and Carole Tregoff today, the jurors had these electrifying developments behind them:

1. Superior Judge LeRoy Dawson, interrupting deliberations Friday, called in the jury and said: "The explanation given by the defendant Finch as to the circumstances surrounding the firing of the fatal shot to me does not sound reasonable in any of its aspects. And it appears to me to have been concocted by him in an attempt to justify what is shown by the evidence, in my opinion, to be the wilful and deliberate taking of a human life—that of the doctor's wife, Barbara Jean Finch."

2. Defence lawyer Grant Cooper twice jumped from his chair to object to the judge's statement—accusing him of invading the jury's province—and was twice cited by Dawson for contempt.

DEFENDANTS SOBBED

The defendants sobbed at the counsel table upon hearing the judge's statement. Finch, 42, and Miss Tregoff, 1122 Blanshard his 23-year-old former mistress, are accused of killing Mrs. Finch to avoid a costly divorce settlement. Finch testified that he and Carole went to see Mrs. Finch to talk about divorce and that she was shot accidentally in a struggle over a gun she had pulled.

The judge rejected this story, saying the one told by the prosecution was more reasonable.

Dawson emphasized the jury was not bound to abide by his views. But he said he was entitled to comment under the law and state constitution. Cooper later remarked: "In all my years of legal experience I have never heard a

DICTATORSHIP THREAT PROTESTED

De Gaulle Under Fire

PARIS (AP) — Angry outcries from leftist and rightist extremists today greeted President Charles de Gaulle's threat to take emergency powers and call a national referendum on a new course for Algeria.

In a nation-wide radio and television address Friday night the 69-year-old soldier-president said that in the end "responsibility for Algerian affairs, at every level, will be assumed by Algerians" and the country will have "its own government, its own institutions, its own laws."

De Gaulle's speech disclosed that he no longer believes it possible that Algeria can remain a part of France—the Algeria Française demanded by rightists, who twice have staged rebellions in Algiers in an effort to enforce a stiffer policy on the Paris government.

His new attitude outraged the rightists, who want to keep Algeria French at all costs, and displeased leftists, who are demanding negotiations to end the war at once.

OFFER REPEATED
De Gaulle repeated his offer to allow the Nationalist rebels to take part in negotiations "with the condition that first of all we agree to stop killing one another."

First reactions from the rebel leaders was that de Gaulle had added no new element to break the deadlock. In Paris, the biggest uproar came from the National Assembly, where deputies exploded at the threat to dissolve parliament and hold a referendum.

CAFE STRAFED

PARIS (Reuters) — Five Algerian Moslems were killed Friday night and two others severely injured when a cafe frequented by Algerians in a northern Paris suburb was sprayed by gunfire. The two gunmen fled.

The Arena Investigation

THE ACTIONS OF THE ARENA
Commission in regard to widespread resignations at Memorial Arena are curious, to say the least. When the news was first announced, chairman Frank Mulliner dismissed the whole thing as "gossip"; everything was fine, he said, and under civic control.

Within a few days the story took on a different hue. Chairman Mulliner conceded:

● The entire office staff had walked out in protest against the administration of Arena manager Joe Dukowski.

● Dukowski had been "severely reprimanded" by the Commission for putting his daughter and son-in-law on the Arena payroll.

● A special meeting had been promised by the Commission and the city's finance committee, to look into the whole question of Arena management.

● Two sets of auditors had examined Arena books and helped straighten out the "hockey ticket mess."

This is the second time in recent months that the Commission has turned to the city for help in solving its problems. Not long ago it became involved in a dispute with Victoria Jaycees which threatened the entire B.C. Products Fair, a project of value to this community. Now it will examine Arena management matters, although the chairman of the finance committee, Ald. Arthur Dowell, seems to have committed himself in advance by saying that he has "the utmost confidence in the Commission."

A disturbing aspect of the forthcoming meeting is that it will be held in camera. In other words, it will be closed to the press, so the public will have only such information tion on the discussions as the Commission chooses to release.

Why is this so? Surely this is public business of the greatest concern. The Arena was built by public subscription, as a memorial to our war dead. The Commission has a solemn and sacred trust, not only to ensure that Arena affairs are managed prudently and well, but with the fullest confidence of the public.

There are questions arising out of recent events on which the public is entitled to the widest disclosures.

Why, for instance, would the assistant manager and the head cashier, with a total of 19 years' service—with families to support, and no other jobs in sight—resign? To whom can they tell their story?

Why was the Commission unaware that Dukowski hired relatives to work at the Arena, to the detriment of at least one union man?

Has the Commission, in fact, been on top of its job?

Chairman Mulliner talks about "gossip." The way to end gossip is to get out the facts, in a full and free inquiry.

If Dukowski has been doing his job properly, the public is entitled to know about it. If he has not—as the resignations and subsequent events suggest—the public should know about that, too.

It is not only Mr. Dukowski's management that is under review. The Commission must give a full accounting of its stewardship in this important public office.

Any attempt to "sweep it under the rug" by way of secret meetings—as seems indicated in statements already made—will be completely unsatisfactory to the citizens of Victoria.

BBG Under Fire

CANADA'S BOARD OF BROADCASTING Governors has in recent weeks handed down two decisions which have caused grave doubts among citizens concerned with free speech and the need for absolute political impartiality in adjudicating Board problems.

The first instance occurred in the recent Peterborough federal by-election. The Conservative candidate, Mr. Harold Matthews, had a television tape made of his campaign calls, for advertising and publicity purposes. The Liberal candidate, Mr. Donald Munro, protested on the grounds that Board rules prohibit "dramatizing" of political events for campaign purposes.

Mr. Munro said also that the Liberals and the Conservatives—had earlier sought permission to use such advertising and had both been turned down. He charged further that Allister Grosart, national director of the Progressive Conservative Association, then obtained permission through Dr. Stewart of the BBG for use of the Tory advertisement. Dr. Stewart replied that the Board had acted on "independent advice" of a lawyer who was formerly the BBG counsel.

CCF leader Hazen Argue said that he will press for a Commons inquiry after Parliament convenes November 17.

The second incident occurred closer to home. The highly-respected radio program, "Town Meeting of the Air," scheduled a discussion September 30 on the topic: "What are the national issues between the Conservatives and the Liberals?"

Two well-known Liberals and an independent moderator were engaged for the broadcast: John Taylor, the Conservative MP, agreed to appear but later withdrew. In the meantime, Town Meeting organizers approached a total of 13 well-known Conservatives, urging them to participate in the debate.

No Conservatives could be found to appear on the program. In an attempt to present as balanced a program as possible, the Town Meeting executives secured an independent Conservative, Mr. Walter Dent, and a guest moderator in Mr. William Dennison, a member of the CCF party.

A tape of the broadcast was sent to the Board of Broadcast Governors. Re-broadcast was refused on the grounds that it was of an inequitable "partisan political character."

Now an independent committee calling itself "Friends of the Town Meeting" and made up of a Liberal, Social Creditor, CCFer and Conservative—has protested the BBG decision on the grounds that equal opportunity was provided to both major parties to participate in the controversial debate.

In a formal submission, they argue: "Surely the doctrine of equal opportunity cannot be carried so far as to cover a situation where the opportunity is provided but not used." Quite rightly, they point out that any party to a controversial discussion may kill debate by the simple expedient of refusing to participate.

What Canadians want is free and full discussion of controversial issues. The Town Meeting has exemplified this spirit in more than 800 broadcasts, dating back 17 years, and in the process has developed a large following.

Reviewing these facts, the public cannot help but conclude that the BBG, by its arbitrary ruling, has placed itself in the position of "protecting" a political party which refused to debate. It is a decision which does not inspire public confidence in the Board.

Meanwhile, in the Laboratory

LITTLE NOTED AMONG THE more spectacular aspects of international aid, a United States project to help other countries with atoms-for-peace is making headway. Eighty-two students from 15 countries are attending special courses in Illinois in the use of atomic reactors. Twenty-eight attended previous training sessions, and selected American students work with the visitors.

All are graduate scientists, chosen by their homelands for this advanced work. The courses are a necessary adjunct to the provision of reactors, for few countries other than the so-called atomic powers—which include Canada—have the necessary qualified experts.

But it is heartening to think that, beneath all the international furor that rages today, these serious men are preparing themselves, with United States assistance, to carry their native lands into the atomic age. There can be few more forward-looking, hopeful projects under way at present.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

OFF the East Saanich Road close to Sidney's McDonald Park there is a small peninsula jutting out into Blue Heron Bay that can prove interesting in many ways to the nature Rambler.

The Douglas firs were logged off sometime in the past and the balsam firs left. Most of these have large numbers of purple-tinged bracket fungi growing on them.

Many types of fungi can be found on the ground and on logs; some specimens are growing on logs lying in the salt water marshes.

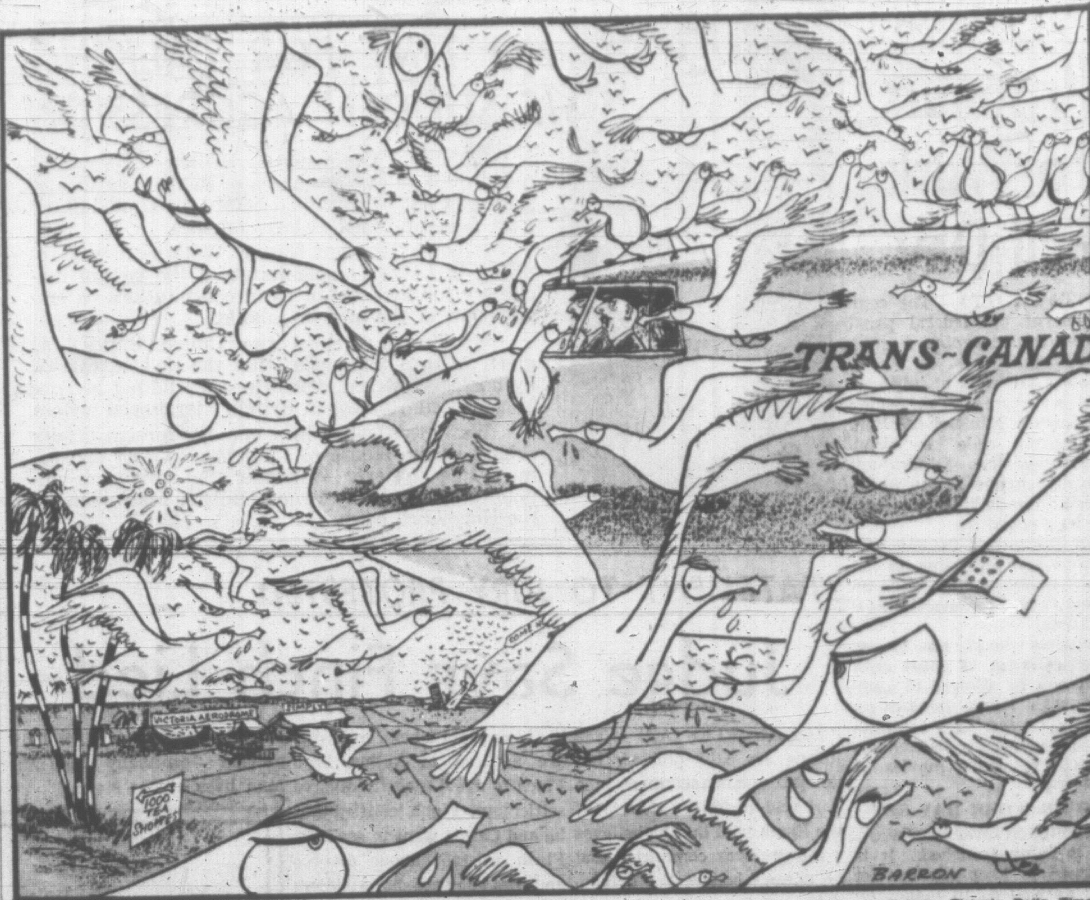

On the northern shore can be seen the runways of the bank rats, showing where they go down to the water on their hunting expeditions.

A variety of birds can be found in this area, which is a bird sanctuary. The Western Grebe with its long neck dives under water and stays down so long that you wonder if he is coming up again.

Mallards, Scooters and Shovelers in large numbers gather here in the quiet waters of Tschum Harbor.

There is a lone Douglas fir tree on the northern tip of the peninsula, and on its top there is an Osprey's nest, which standing out against the sky makes an unusual sight.

Looking south across the bay one can see the old house on Barrow Point that was the original post office of North Saanich. There are still portions of the wharf left, where the early settlers landed the first flour mill on Vancouver Island.

"A 40 per cent fare boost isn't half enough for this crazy Victoria run, I say..."

FROM OTTAWA

Dismiss the Byelections as a Bit of Hallowe'en Madness?

FEDERAL politicians usually dismiss byelections with an airy wave of their hand and a brief "Ah, byelections don't mean a thing."

They remember too well how the Tories won nine out of 13 byelections in the months preceding the general election of 1953, then took a shattering defeat at the hands of the Liberals. With this in mind, it is difficult to describe just how worked up those same politicians are about the four byelections held last Monday, in New Brunswick's Royal, Quebec's Labelle, and Ontario's Peterborough and Niagara Falls. They are reading just about everything into the results.

For the record, the Liberals held Niagara Falls and picked up Labelle from the Conservatives. The Conservatives held Royal, and the New Party seized a seat from the Conservatives in Peterborough.

From the Conservative point of view, winning one byelection out of four is not exactly an expression of confidence in the government of John Diefenbaker. But they did win Royal, where former Tory premier Hugh John Flemming, named a member of the federal Cabinet before the vote, was fighting for more than a seat in the Commons. The whole prestige of the Government was at stake in Royal; a loss there would have been as welcome as a kick in the teeth.

Labelle, in an area that returned a Union Nationale MLA in Quebec's provincial election this summer, was the bright spot from the Liberal point of view. They are now swimming in visions of recapturing those 50 seats, or a goodly percentage of them, that the late Mr. Duplessis and his UN machine won for John Diefenbaker back in 1958.

Niagara Falls was interesting. The Liberals didn't for a moment think they would lose it, but they were heartened by the size of the plurality piled up by Judy LaMarsh, a real go-getter, who is expected to put some needed life into the Liberal parliamentary attack.

And then there is Peterborough. In the years to come, if the New Party becomes a success, Canada's socialists will remember Peterborough as they once remembered Regina.

To be sure, there were local issues in Peterborough. There was, and is a high level of unemployment; the Liberal and Conservative candidates were weak. But the fact remains, the New Party, as yet unborn, its founding convention set for next summer, won a seat in a traditionally Tory riding.

For a long time now, it has been obvious the Diefenbaker Conservatives are losing support in the country. Until a more reliable indicator is devised, the Gallup poll provides a measure of the disenchantment, and the poll has shown a sharp drop in Tory strength. The Liberals thought they were picking up the disenchantment, but they weren't certain. Some felt the disenchantment were slipping right across into that category labelled "undecided," and now the evidence is in to support their belief.

In 1957, the total vote cast in the four ridings involved totalled 87,460. The Conservatives got 46,900 of the total, the Liberals 36,229, the CCF 3,418 and Social Credit 913.

In 1958 the total for the four ridings came to 94,923 with Conservatives winning 53,625, the Liberals 35,970, the CCF 5,002, and Social Credit 326.

Now comes the shocker, the figures that have the politicians in something of a sweat. On Monday last, the total vote was 90,593. The Conservatives dropped down to 34,548, the Liberals stayed about the same with 35,854, and the CCF-New Party total rocketed up to 20,191.

Most of the spectacular CCF-New Party increase came in Peterborough where the vote rose from 1,887 votes to 13,208, but the New Party candidate in Niagara Falls doubled the CCF vote from 1958's 3,115 to 6,591 Monday.

The obvious lesson in the byelections for the Conservatives is an emphatic "pull up your socks." For the Liberals it is not that easy. How do they crystallize anti-government sentiment behind Mike Pearson? Should they swing to the left, to prevent being squeezed out between right and left, as was the Liberal party in the United Kingdom? Or would a more concerted campaign swing the voters who followed John in 1958, in behind Pearson?

Right now, everyone but those in the New Party structure is wishing the byelections could be dismissed as a bit of Hallowe'en madness.

THE PEOPLE SURGE ABOUT AND OVER THE CAR

They Remember F.D.R. When Kennedy Comes Among Them

IN this reporter's fairly long experience, there has been nothing quite comparable to travelling with Sen. Kennedy in the climactic week of the 1960 campaign. From dawn to late at night, the people are always there, in clumps of hundreds along the highways, in crowds dense-packed behind barriers at the airports; in eager yet patiently waiting knots outside the hotels, and in many tens of thousands—even hundreds of thousands in such a city as Los Angeles—for the big urban parade.

But these multitudinous smiling faces, these countless wildly waving, wildly reaching hands, are not so impressive merely because of their incalculable numbers. They are so impressive, rather, because of the feeling which Kennedy has somehow inspired in these people.

Slowly, at the merest snail's pace, the open convertible carries him forward through the clotted masses of humanity. He stands to wave, or leans to touch the offered hands. The people surge about, and over, and behind the car. And almost every face visibly glows with affection and with hope.

It is mysterious how any modern politician, in this less and less personal and intimate era, has managed to arouse and focus on himself so much emotion, and almost all in the brief, lurid hurly-burly of this one campaign. What is it, then? What is the character, what is the nature, of this feeling Kennedy has known how to stir?

I made the arduous, even somewhat perilous experiment of following behind Kennedy's car for a while. I found that as the cheers died and the surging ceased, the people would quite often turn to one another and say: "He could be another F. D. R." or: "He looks like another Roosevelt, let's pray he is," or something of that sort.

This was the nearest to self-analysis that they ever came, at any rate. It was curious, too, how many of those who looked at Kennedy and remembered Franklin Roosevelt could hardly have remembered the Roosevelt of the first years of the New Deal—the years when cold fear was driven out.

That young father, for instance, with his three children festooned over his shoulders who kept telling his four-year-old son, "Always remember that! You've seen the Senator, you've seen the Senator! Always remember that!"

He must have been an eighteen-year-old G.I. when the far-flung armies of the West got the news of what had happened at Warm Springs on April 12, 1945. So many of the others are in the young father's generation, too.

Perhaps indeed the recollection of that day at Warm Springs, and of the whole world in mourning after that day, is another clue to the present enigma. For all that was controversial about Franklin Roosevelt, all that used to stir anger or doubt, has begun to be forgotten.

What is now remembered is the great leader, able to inspire America and the world, who was lost on the eve of victory unimaginable. That is the Roosevelt for whom nostalgia is so widely felt today.

The strange tides of our politics caused the American majority to hanker for comfort and reassurance and consolidation in 1952 and 1956—and in 1952 and 1956 the folk memory of Franklin Roosevelt gave no aid to Adlai Stevenson. But the tides are running differently now, or so it seems.

The call to comfort no longer commands its former audience. The country listens, now, for a call to greatness.

Kennedy's success—if he has succeeded—most certainly must be understood in these terms. It is widely said that he has been "promising everything." But his chief social promises—more aid to education, stronger housing bills, a better minimum wage law, and medical care for the aged—do not make an unduly formidable list.

Later, moreover, the Vice-President has been making almost much the same promises. The promises, in truth, cannot be the secret of Kennedy's success.

The secret is, I think, twofold. The flat Boston voice, chopping out the short and vivid sentences, somehow conveys both a strong concern and a deep commitment—a concern for the less privileged in the American community, and a commitment to the high destiny of America.

Maybe the concern is pretended. Maybe the commitment is assumed. No man on earth, including the candidate himself, can tell what sort of president the candidate will make until the election is over and the candidate passes the portals of the White House.

But vast numbers of the American people are now convinced of the reality and power of this concern and commitment. That is why the faces are alight with hope and affection, and why they remember F. D. R., when Kennedy comes campaigning among them. (C) 1960, N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.

THE INFORMATION IS OF DUBIOUS VALUE

Just a Road, Our Heroes, and the Burghers of Commachio

ONE of the milestones marking my progress from carefree youth to tollworn senility was the acquisition of a pocket diary as a more or less permanent fixture in my jacket pocket. Diaries, when I was very young, were given for Christmas—it was a poor Christmas that didn't bring at least one copy of Mr. Charles Lettis's "Schoolboy's Diary."

with its fund of information about sporting events and the dates of the Kings and Queens of England—and you started to keep them religiously until about January 8th, when the recording of daily occurrences in the meteorological and gastronomic spheres began to reveal a certain lack of richness and variety.

Compared to Peppys or Evelyns, the schoolboy who solemnly records: "Rained in mng. In afn. read and went for wk. Stk. and kdny. pig. for spr." cannot be said to be making any lasting contribution to literature or the sum of human knowledge.

Now that I have been made acquainted with the bare rudiments of educational psychology, I realize why it was that my diaries were put aside after a week or two. There was no felt need on my part creating the necessary tension which could only be allayed by the acquisition and regular use of a pocket diary.

This need did not make itself felt until I was an undergraduate, when it had a pretty hard time attracting my attention away from other needs; no less urgent and considerably more expensive, which explains why I carry an Oxford University Pocket Diary about with me.

I shall be the first to admit that much of the information in it is of dubious value. I cannot, for instance, foresee an occasion when I shall need to know, at a moment's notice, the telephone number of the Bureau of Animal Population or the Edward Grey Institute of Field Ornithology—but should the need arise I have the answer at my finger tips.

I note with interest that a letter posted in the Head Office before 5.30 a.m. will be delivered in Oxford with the 6.45 a.m. delivery, which sounds like good going; and I am puzzled by the fact that a bus takes only three hours to go from Oxford to Cambridge (always supposing that anyone wanted to do such a desperately irrational thing) while the return journey takes three hours and twenty-five minutes.

The City Council has 68 members, of whom 17 are aldermen and 51 merely councillors, and the interesting fact emerges that the university is allotted three of the aldermanic seats and nine of the councillor seats. The population of Oxford is about the same as that of Victoria. I find that provides me with food for thought.

The diary compiler lists all the faculties, all the chairs with their resounding titles: Sibthorpian Professor of Rural Economy, Montague Burton Professor of International Relations, and so on. I see the chair of Statistics is vacant. Care to apply?

Each day provides its little store of information: hours of sunset and sunrise (at Oxford or Greenwich or somewhere), saints' days, phases of the moon, royal birthdays, and advertisements for the various examinations and academic festivals.

I see that last Wednesday was All Souls' Day, and it occurs to me that if I had had one of these invaluable little diaries in my pocket in November, 1943, I should certainly have been spared a rather nerve-racking experience.

With two South African private soldiers for company I was walking south down the east coast of Italy towards the advancing Eighth Army, which was about to come to a halt at the Sangro. Where the Po splits into the two or three streams which comprise its delta you will find, a few miles north of Ravenna, a large lagoon nearly fifteen miles from east to west and perhaps eight miles across at its widest.

This, as you can guess, posed something of a problem for people who were in a hurry, but who also wished to travel incognito, in order to spare the authorities the trouble and expense of an official reception.

The way round was an extra day's march, and it led dangerously close to Ferrara, which had an ill name among the polyglot underworld of deserters and escaped prisoners to which we belonged: it was a hotbed of dedicated Fascists.

To follow the coast meant entrusting ourselves to a long narrow strip of land—little more than a raised embankment for much of its length—which was wide enough to carry the road and no more. It lacked cover, and it entailed the passage of two ferries; it was crammed with German troops and their vehicles. After a long argument in a ditch near Migliorino, we decided to rush the defile, come what may, rather than risk the illiberal temper of the Ferrarese.

We had first to pass through the fishing port of Commachio, and we chose to do this at about eleven o'clock, when it was customary for all good Italians to be indoors inhaling the prandial pasta. This timing had proved satisfactory before and we had no reason to believe that it would be otherwise on this occasion.

Down the straight road we bounded and into the deserted outskirts of the town; we rounded a corner and found ourselves in the square, along with the entire population, who were dressed and behaving like a full rehearsal for "The Gondoliers." Surprise, surprise!

There was nothing to do but keep going, pursued by all the inquisitive small fry, who spared themselves nothing in the way of merriment at our scruffy appearance. The way led on for a couple of miles, with the land getting narrower all the time until there was just the road, our three heroes, and the burghers of Commachio who were heading, it turned out, for the cemetery at the end of the long spit.

Now if I had had my little book, I should have known that it was All Souls' Day—could it really be Tutti Soli in Italian, or have I made that up?—a national holiday, and I should have been spared all that embarrassment.

The Reading Public

The other day, while waiting for my periodic plague shot in the doctor's waiting room, I fell to reading (as one usually does) the time-whiling-away material provided.

Times have changed in doctors' offices. In the good old days there were doctored copies of the National Geographic Magazine of venerable vintage and (by the time I ever got there) tattered scraps of the morning paper from Wednesday of last week. Not so any more, so far as I know. There may, of course, be a few old-fashioned physicians about who still cling to the traditional Geographic, but one never hears of them. The modern medico vies with his colleagues in providing the latest in flip periodicals, in splendid profusion.

I (and doubtless you) have often wondered what goes on at those mysterious medical conferences which take place from time to time in such out-of-the-way places as Paris, Rome, Lausanne (winter only) and London. All the layman knows is that when he needs the family doc for something, said doc is away at a conference in Rio or Copenhagen, depending on the season. There was a time when doctors sent their patients away on bracing and refreshing cruises, but now, it seems, the shoe is on the other foot.

However, who am I to complain? There's nothing like a weekend at Sooke, when you get right down to it.

Let's take a quick look at the International Congress of Anthropomorphologists which took place at Rome last summer, at the time (curiously enough) as the Olympic Games.

The vast hall is full to capacity with seven professors from a variety of medical schools. The chairman calls for order, and announces the topic for the day's discussion. "Gentlemen!" he calls, "Order, please. The subject today is Subscriptionology. Dr. Rajachopalachari will please present his paper."

Dr. R. clears his throat and begins to read in a fluent Urdu. Four of the professors get up and leave. Apparently the simultaneous translation people slipped up.

Two hours later the paper ends, and the chairman sums up. In due course the proceedings of the learned society sponsoring the affair are published (in French, German and Spanish) and the medical world is only partially enlightened as the modern trends in subscribing to waiting-room magazines.

I'm glad, though, that the problem is being tackled. For it is a problem, to the patient. One gets to wondering (heretically, or course), if one's medical adviser, subscribing as he does to magazines like The New Yorker and Zippy Gags is... well, sound. With the old Geographic, you knew the man was... well, safe. Nothing spectacular, maybe, but trustworthy in a pinch.

It is a little worrying. My man had the latest Life last week. And I was handed a fresh copy of the CBC Times. Where is it going to end?

All I know is that this sort of treatment of the waiting patient leads direct to state medicine, and nothing to read but the B.C. Gazette and Beautiful British Columbia.

U.K. LABOR WANTS PACT ON A-ARMS

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's Labor party said today the initial decision of any Western nation to use nuclear weapons should be subject to "collective agreement" of the NATO powers.

Denis Healey, chief Labor spokesman on foreign affairs, declared this a "basic principle" of his party.

Healey addressed the House of Commons in a one-day foreign affairs debate.

U.S. allies, he said, should develop some control over the use of American nuclear weapons. "Not only inside the NATO area but all over the world."

Healey expressed concern over "possible provocative acts" by U.S. nuclear-powered submarines armed with Polaris missiles which will be based at Holy Loch, Scotland.

MAIN THEME AT B.C. CONVENTION:

Socred Money Theories 'Can Cure What Ails Us'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Social Credit monetary theories were presented Friday as the cure for what ails Canada.

Speaker after speaker at the annual convention of the British Columbia Social Credit League returned to that theme in saying the chance is rapidly coming for the party to win control of the federal parliament.

They said the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties had failed to solve Canada's chronic economic and unemployment problems and that the new party coalition of CCF and labor is a threat to democracy.

With the B.C. and Alberta legislatures secure with Social Credit governments—the B.C. party was returned Sept. 12—now was the time to more than recoup the loss suffered in the last federal election when the party lost all its seats in the Commons, the speakers indicated.

NO DEBATE

The monetary theory was mentioned in speeches and in a resolution passed without debate that asked the B.C. government to request that federal government "devise and adopt without delay such fiscal and monetary policies and techniques as may be expected to remedy" the defects in the economy.

National fiscal and monetary policies were blamed for failure to prevent continued decline of the purchasing power of the dollar; maintain competitive prices for Canadian export products; halt worsening standards of living for those on fixed incomes; prevent real hardship for low income groups and the unemployed; facilitate industrial progress and make fullest contribution toward lessening hunger and hardship around the world.

B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett, national president Robert N. Thompson, Alberta president Orvis Kennedy and B.C. president Noel Murphy all played on the On-to-Ottawa theme as did most of the candidates for elective positions in the league.

Mr. Thompson criticized the "antiquated, outmoded, insufficient" monetary theory in Canada today.

Mr. Murphy said Canada is in a cycle of booms and depressions and that past governments have been saved by war or preparation for war. The current monetary system could not equitably distribute the country's vast wealth.

Social Credit must get a substantial foothold "in that mausoleum of Conservatism, Liberal and CCF mediocrity, the House of Commons in Ottawa."

HARD-HIT IWA LOCAL URGES WORKS PROGRAM

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) Friday told Premier Bennett more than one-third of its members now are unemployed and a public works program is needed immediately to provide jobs.

The message was sent to the premier at the Social Credit League convention here after 386 men were laid off at three MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited plants in the district.

The action followed a stormy meeting of 160 men laid off at the company's Canadian White Pine division mill. Union officials said almost 2,200 of the 6,200 members in the Vancouver Local 1-217 now are without jobs.

Potential Candidate Can't Keep Secrets

VANCOUVER (CP)—About 400 Social Crediters Friday took steps to protect the party in case of a re-currence of the Donald Riggan affair in the Sept. 12 provincial election.

A resolution passed at the annual convention of the Social Credit League of British Columbia which called for the disowning of a candidate who withholds personal information, regardless of whether his name remains on a ballot.

The resolution was passed virtually without comment although it obviously referred to the nomination of Mr. Riggan, the ruling Christian Democratic party polled 42.2 per cent of the total vote in the last parliamentary elections 30 months ago. The Communists at that time got 22.7 per cent. The new elections do not affect parliament.

Vote in Italy To Show Trend

ROME (Reuters)—Millions of Italians from the Alps to Sicily go to the polls Sunday and Monday in provincial and municipal elections that are expected to reveal the country's current political leanings.

The ruling Christian Democratic party polled 42.2 per cent of the total vote in the last parliamentary elections 30 months ago. The Communists at that time got 22.7 per cent. The new elections do not affect parliament.

Mr. Riggan made a statement only a few days before the election that he had been a spy for the Canadian secret service and as such had served a term in Prince Albert Saskatchewan Penitentiary.

He was to seek information on a German scientist in the prison. There was no confirmation of his story from authorities.

Mr. Riggan withdrew his nomination then withdrew his withdrawal. Although not elected he polled many thousands of votes in a constituency won by the CCF.

Mr. Thompson criticized the "antiquated, outmoded, insufficient" monetary theory in Canada today.

Mr. Murphy said Canada is in a cycle of booms and depressions and that past governments have been saved by war or preparation for war. The current monetary system could not equitably distribute the country's vast wealth.

'Height of Folly' To Get A-Arms

KAYVILLE, Sask. (CP) — CCF Leader Hazen Argue said Friday night it is the height of folly for the Canadian government to talk total disarmament at the United Nations while going forward with plans to introduce nuclear weapons in Canada.

Mr. Argue, speaking at a banquet here, said Canada must exert all her energies to get total disarmament talks started on a new and realistic basis while evolving a defence policy "which fully takes account of the fact that our national defence today depends on deterring aggression, that is, on preventing war."

"But the Conservative government has proven that it does not understand this fact, Mr. Harkness no sooner becomes minister of national defence than he insists on the necessity of arming Canadian troops with nuclear weapons while Prime Minister Diefenbaker talks of Canada acquiring submarines the better to fight Soviet nuclear missile firing submarines in the Atlantic."

Neither Mr. Diefenbaker nor Mr. Harkness sees the absurdity of actually preparing to fight a nuclear war. Why prepare for suicide? Would it not be more sensible to prepare for peace?"

He said that in negotiating total disarmament each side is acting in good faith because the only victor in a thermo-nuclear war will be death.

A comprehensive disarmament treaty must be negotiated. A treaty could be denounced by one side before it is totally disarmed and helpless if it caught the other side reneging on its commitments.

BLAST DIKES IN ITALY

ROVIGO (AP) — Police stood guard today between angry farmers of this flood-stricken area and Italian army engineers preparing to blast new gaps in dikes to ease the pressure of the Po River.

Thousands of fertile acres already are under 10 feet of water. Army engineers Friday blasted gaps to divert the waters.

Angered farmers objected that the new breaks planned for today would immediately submerge their cultivated fields.

Navy Man's Suggestion Wins $1,500

OTTAWA (CP) — The largest cash prize ever awarded to a member of the Royal Canadian Navy by the suggestion award board of the public service of Canada — $1,500 — will be given Lieut. Harry Hargreaves of Ottawa here Tuesday, it was announced Friday.

Lieut. Hargreaves, a native of Bradford, England, who served in the RN from 1933 to 1948 before joining the RCN in 1951, won the reward for a suggestion that enabled more rapid and efficient handling of naval messages.

The suggestion, put on trial in 1956 and subsequently adopted by the navy, is estimated to have saved the defence department $100,000 in a three-year period.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

During the past week I have read two brief autobiographies by two remarkable writers; one is "Speak, Memory" by Vladimir Nabokov, and the other is "A Sketch of My Life" by Thomas Mann. Both books are remarkable in what they reveal and what they conceal.

The life of a writer is rarely eventful; his finest hours are spent alone, at his desk. Anecdotes about his famous friends, about the causes for which he has worked, and about his journeys are of decidedly lesser interest, and may be left to faithful biographers; in an author, more than in any other sort of artist, self-praise is disgusting.

Let the generals and the politicians trumpet and cavort in their life-stories; a writer should know better.

Nabokov has given us a moving, delicate, humorous account of what it was like to be brought up in an aristocratic household in pre-revolutionary Moscow. Few of us have any idea of what it

A Favored Life But Not Easy

Nabokov's father was both a Russian prince and a great Russian liberal, who worked ceaselessly to gain some sort of responsible government for his country; his son's youth was passed primarily in getting a fine education; unquestionably it was a favored and pleasant life, but it was in no way idle or easy.

After 1917, it became the life of a wanderer, without money but with aristocratic connections which were often embarrassing and sometimes dangerous. The older Nabokov, as a famous liberal, was assassinated by the Bolsheviks who, we do not need to be told now, hated liberals quite as fervently as the most pig-headed Imperial absolutist.

Vladimir Nabokov, after twenty years of wandering, went to the U.S.A. and became

Mann's Battleground Was Spiritual

Mann's life, though the two Great Wars disturbed it outwardly, and the Nazi regime brought him into political prominence as a voice of the sane Germany, was essentially one of quiet creation.

His struggles were not of the flesh, but of the spirit.

What impresses the North American reader about both these autobiographies, is their aristocratic tone—the aristocracy being that of the dedicated artist, rather than of the highly-born.

Both men do what few North American writers are able to do; they assume that their work is of importance not only to literature, but to mankind as a whole, being contributions to that cultural life which is the essence of civilization. They never wonder what the

The Failure Is Never Our Own

We do not like them to set themselves apart, and to make claims on society in the name of their art; we are ready, when their opinions differ from our own, to accuse them of remoteness from life, without any disquieting suspicion that perhaps they see some things more clearly than we do.

Very often we ask them to confirm our own opinions, and if they will not do so we wonder whether they are not, after all, Reds, or reactionaries, or something else which is reprehensible.

Ideally the public's attitude toward writers would be some-where between the Germanic and the North American extremes. To make a prophet or

ART IN REVIEW

By ARTHUR CORRY

Business, Art, Combine To Beautify the Mundane

How often one hears the remark that the "arty touch" and good business do not mix. Three Victoria business men think otherwise, however, and to the delight of the public and all concerned, art is good business.

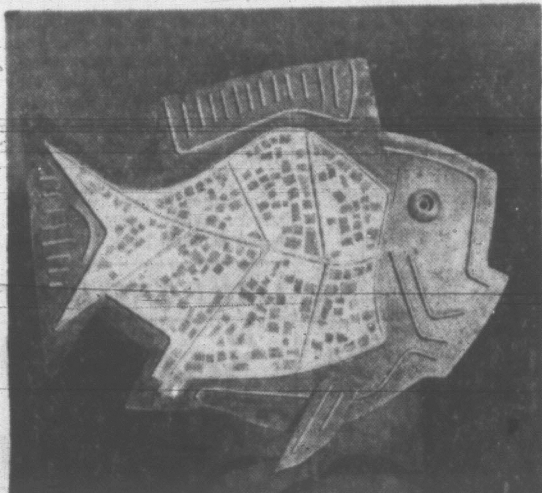

One of the most outstanding works is the recently completed graffiti "Frieze of Life," by Herbert Siebner. This decorative abstract blends and complements the interior of the Crown House, creating interest and adding color in an otherwise clean, smooth, and utilitarian atmosphere.

By using graffiti as a media, Mr. Siebner has brought a "first" to our city. This decorative method was first used in Renaissance Italy for the exterior of stuccoed buildings.

Consisting of several layers of cement or plaster, in various colors, the design is incised through to the colored undercoat, and this incising or carving creates a relief.

Corry undercoat, and this incising or carving creates a relief.

"FISH"—designed by Siebner, metal work by Klaus Vinkelmann; decorative motif in local restaurant.

In this mural black was the first color, then umber, gold ochre, sienna, burnt umber, with the final overcoat of white. These colors are permanent and with the use of stucco, we have an ideal media for exterior art that will withstand our damp climate. Robert Cooper's wall design at the Ingham Hotel, is another example of abstract introduction in everyday life. A floor to ceiling panel, of deep relief, blends with surrounding decor, the color matching the walnut panelling, and with the use of soft lights reveal the deep shadows of this Inca type modelling.

However, the chief interest in this room are seven beautifully designed panels. On backgrounds of red, brown, yellow, and terracotta, are striking abstract symbols, squares, lines, and rectangles. Here again, the artist and the business man have combined for mutual profit.

With a sheet of steel and lengths of brass wire, Klaus Vinkelmann has shown his skill as a silversmith, formerly of West Berlin, in expertly executing Herbert Siebner's design for fish and rooster. Adding color to the brass and steel is the ingenious use of glass mosaic; five shades of blue on the fish and several shades of orange and red for the rooster.

What could be more significant and appealing than these artistic jewels as the entrance decor to the Steak House?

This proves, I believe, that art is part of our daily life, and no matter how "arty" artists appear, they are an essential part of our community as a whole.

NEW USE FOR ART

CHICAGO (UPI)—Art dealer Samuel R. Schwartz of Chicago's Guildhall Galleries wants to put paintings on the walls of bomb shelters. He said people need something pleasant to look at instead of each other while they are using the shelter.

Though the most English of Englishmen, Max Beerbohm hated pomposity and arrogance, and not even the royal family were safe from his caricaturist's pen. It is not recorded whether or not the aged Queen Victoria ever saw his drawings—including the famous one of the Queen herself, huge, maternal and morally righteous; scolding her wayward son, later Edward VII, also huge but morally skittish.

It is reported, however, that members of the present royal family treasure a panel of Max's caricatures of the Duke of Windsor, and keep it discreetly hidden behind a screen in a drawing room at Windsor.

Portrait of Max is the story of those hours and the conversations that made them so memorable. At the same time it is an informal biography of a discerning, highly intelligent and intellectually independent human being.

For example, of Kipling Beerbohm said: "His books kept coming out, and occasionally I was asked to review them. I couldn't, you know, abide them. He was a genius, a very great genius, and I felt that he was debasing his genius by what he wrote. And I couldn't refrain from saying so."

Or of Ibsen: "Primarily he was an artist, pure and simple, actuated by the artist's joy in reproduction of human character as it appeared to his keen, unwavering eyes. But he had a joy within a joy; joy in the havoc he wrought. Ibsen hated peace, and he didn't care a snap of his fingers for liberty."

Beerbohm, Mr. Beerbohm reports, was "floored by some of T. S. Eliot and the 'obscure' school of poetry in general. He referred to it as 'the wootie-poogie school.' He was enchanted by Eliot personally. He is very modest and most impressive in appearance, with the look of a great man, don't you know, but as for some of his poetry I can neither read nor understand it."

And Beerbohm on G.B.S.: "Shaw's judgments were often scatterbrained, but at least he had brains to scatter."

Shrewd Comment On Canadian Life

MORE LETTERS OF DUNCAN CAMPBELL SCOTT, edited by Arthur S. Bourinot (privately printed by the editor). $2.50.

(Reviewed By Jack Cameron)
Guest reviewer Jack Cameron is a lecturer in the English department at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads.

This collection of letters of the Canadian poet will not attract the general reader, but will be of considerable importance to students of Canadian literature, and of interest to anyone acquainted with the work of Scott.

Scott's life had no purple passage—nothing of the sort that spiced the correspondence of Keats and Byron.

His letters, written between 1892 and 1947 during his long career with the Department of Indian Affairs in Ottawa, are largely composed of remarks on the publishing business, on the work of his fellow poets, on his travels in North America and Europe, reminiscences about his acquaintance with notable figures of the English literary world.

The interest lies not in Scott's own life, but in his reflections on Canadian life and letters during the past half century.

In one letter (1904) he makes an interesting misjudgment of the work of Keats: "I think you take (him) much too seriously and I hope upon reflection you will agree with me that there is no strong trend in (his) work toward anything of importance."

In 1905, when the young MacKenzie King attempted to encourage a sympathetic biography of his ancestors, William Lyon, by an author friend of Scott's, the poet wrote: "I don't want you to run off with the idea everybody in Ottawa has the same opinion of MacKenzie King that he himself holds. His interference I consider positively impertinent."

The collection is prefaced by some lively personal recollections of Scott by the editor, a lifelong friend.

A Bouncy Novel For a Fall Evening

JUGGER, by Sterling Quinlan. George J. McLeod Ltd., Toronto. 248 pages. $4.25.

Unregenerate, crafty, a thorn in the side of all that is right and proper in the well-ordered community, Jugger is a merry rogue who adds spice to life in a village of upstate New York.

He is in his late middle age. It would not be fair to call him a Robin Hood, because he robbed the rich to help himself, but he does have an aura of gallantry about him, only because he manages to stay alive without doing a tap of honest work.

There are episodes which have the reader roaring with laughter, and others when pity for the old reprobate is very real. However, the author is most astute. He never leaves Jugger in that kind of situation long enough to change the basic flavor of the novel, which is ribald and gay—in a Tobacco Road sort of way.

Jugger strikes one as being a bit of a lightweight for hard covers, almost as if the copy reviewed was a gesture to be made prior to the book's appearance in money-making paperback form.

Not that it is cheap or shoddy. It is just that it is cracking good escape reading—a bouncy novel to be enjoyed in an evening or two—and not something to be preserved and cherished in a permanent library.—DGL.

Lerner's Wife Basks in Shadow

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press
Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Micheline Lerner has two men in her life. One is her song-writer husband, Alan Jay Lerner, and the other is her two-year-old son Michael.

"I cannot resist either one," she says. This means she is up early in the mornings to see her son and up late at night to see her husband who is busy all day preparing for the Nov. 17 Broadway opening of "Camelot."

The Corsican-born beauty was here with her husband for a three-week pre-Broadway run of the musical about King Arthur's court.

Lunching on salmon salad at a hotel a few blocks from where the play was in rehearsal at Toronto's new O'Keefe Centre for the Performing Arts, she remarked that this was her first opportunity to see her husband at work.

MET AT PARTY
She also saw what the birth pangs of a new musical can do to the people bringing it to life. A few days after the play opened Lerner was in hospital with an ulcer condition that delayed revision of some of the songs and Mrs. Lerner was almost constantly at his bedside.

She married him three years ago after "My Fair Lady," on which Lerner collaborated with Frederick Loewe, had become an established hit.

They met in New York at a party given by Rex Harrison, star of "My Fair Lady," and the late Kay Kendall, continued the romance in Paris where Lerner was doing the screenplay for the film Gigi, and were married in New York.

"Now we are gypsies but we will have a home soon." She is converting her husband's family home in New York to French decor.

BECAME LAWYER

Although she now finds herself in the shadow of her husband's growing fame as a lyricist, Micheline is a personality in her own right.

At 20, Micheline Muselli Pozzo di Borgo had her master's degree in law from the Sorbonne and was admitted to the bar.

She immediately embarked on a serious law career. Her first case was defending a man who had slain his wife and chopped the body into pieces.

"He had to die," she recalled sadly. She visited him every day for six months before the trial and, at his request, every day for two months after he was condemned to die.

THIS WEEKEND'S trio of concerts by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra brings Clifford Evans from his concert master's desk to the podium in the capacity of assistant conductor of the orchestra. With Mr. Evans as guest artist is Vancouver violinist Esther Glazer, who is playing the difficult Paganini Concerto No. 1. Program was premiered at Sidney's Sancha Hall on Friday.

More than 400 movie theatres in Britain closed down during the 12 months ending March 31, 1960.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE
AA (Open Class) BB (Worthwhile) A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days) C (To put in time)

(BB PLUS TO A) "THE WOMAN AND THE WILD RIVER" (Odeon): Ella Kazan has tried honestly to say something about man and his progress in 20th Century-Fox's "The Woman and the Wild River." And although he hasn't said all he could have, or all he might have wished to, the picture nonetheless emerges as something strong and worthwhile.

But you can almost read the trouble in the title which was originally, "Wild River." That wasn't enough to sell it, doubtless, so "The Woman" was added. Just to add a soupçon of further intrigue a picture of stars Montgomery Clift and Lee Remick about to embrace was inserted in the advertisement plus the lines: "Ella Kazan's Smouldering Story of the South."

Actually the picture will appear slow to many, especially the young who missed that heartless period known to history as the "great depression" of the 1930s when President Franklin D. Roosevelt was trying to put his nation back on prosperity's tracks.

One government project was the Tennessee Valley Authority that was established in 1933 to stop the devastation and loss of life caused by the ever-flooding river. And the discerning will realize that it is this, its implementation and its results, not only for the generations to come but for those whose homes and lands had to be flooded in the name of progress, that is the film's focal point.

TROUBLE BEGINS

Trouble begins when young TVA representative Montgomery Clift is assigned to convince an old woman, the lone holdout against the project, that she must sell her land to the government so that building can commence on the important dam in the area. But

Mixed Reaction To Canadian Play

LONDON (CP)—Two British newspapers Thursday took differing views on the quality of the first performance of "Strange to Relate"—a prize-winning play by Canadian dramatist Jacques Languiand.

The play, produced by the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, won the Dominion Drama Festival prize and has been performed in Paris.

"An exciting production in an excellent set of a play that raised laughter and irritation," says The Guardian. "Let us hope the Birmingham Repertory Theatre will have the courage to put on more plays by this author to further both our understanding and entertainment."

The Times was more critical. The play has good references, it says, "but the company gives the impression that, being without confidence in the author's characterization, they are giving too 'high-pitched and monotonous a performance.'"

The Guardian says the play was "translated admirably," as far as dialogue and theatrical effect was concerned, by Donald Watson.

"But some of the depth and nuances of mood and meaning that come from the rhythms and sounds of an alien tongue are bound, alas, to evade our grasp."

EAST MEETS WEST

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Actor John Crawford is a native of Colfax, Wash., but he slowly has been working his way east until now he seems to have made a specialty of portraying Englishmen in British films.

Crawford started his career in Hollywood, then moved to the stage in New York and finally moved to London to play a British-accented killer in his latest effort, "Hell Is a City."

Views Differ On Economic Prospects

NEW YORK (AP) — Business sentiment in the United States saw-sawed this week under the weight of election campaign stresses and divergent views on the economic outlook.

The stock market apparently felt it had digested enough possibilities of the election's outcome and mounted a moderate rally.

It found encouragement in announcement of private and government spending plans but also took notice of some rather dim views of what was ahead.

General Motors chairman Frederic G. Donner disclosed plans to spend $1,250,000 in the U.S. and abroad for new plants, machinery, equipment and tooling in 1961. This would be $50,000,000 above the 1960 outlay. About $1,000,000,000 would be spent in the U.S.

Donner predicted passenger car sales would reach 7,000,000 in 1961. Sales this year are expected to run about 6,700,000.

CORPORATE EARNINGS UP
Corporate earnings for the first nine months of 1960 exceeded 1959 by about two per cent, and profits for the fourth quarter may come close to the 1959 period, a survey showed. However, the third and fourth quarters last year were dented by steel and copper strikes.

A survey of manufacturers showed they took for increased orders, billings and profits in the first half of 1961.

However, the First National City Bank of New York said it found economic trends have shifted from a lateral movement to a moderate downturn.

A majority of leading economists, responding to an inquiry from F. W. Dodge Corp., a construction and marketing statistical agency, said they foresee a mild recession between now and the end of 1961.

FEWER LOADINGS
A decline in freight loadings for rail and truck industries reflected a slowing business trend.

Steel output dropped to an estimated 51.7 per cent of capacity from last week's 54.2. Auto production tapered off for the first time since production tapered off for the first time since production started on 1961 models.

The treasury reported that the 1960 outflow of U.S. gold passed the $1,000,000,000 mark with a loss of $45,000,000 in the last week. That left the treasury with $18,417,000,000 in gold. However, the rush to buy gold on the London market subsided.

Training Delayed For Jobless

Accommodation problems have delayed start of a program of educational classes for the unemployed in Victoria, but first courses will begin in Vancouver in about two weeks.

The provincial education department's program is aimed at combatting unemployment through academic and vocational upgrading of adults.

Some 30 candidates in Vancouver have been referred to school board adult education officials for screening. They will take classes up to Grade 12 in Vancouver vocational institute.

The school board in Victoria was unable to spare any of its already-crowded space.

Education department officials have been touring halls and other possible accommodation for rent, so far without success.

A special curriculum is being prepared for use once classes can be started.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson announced Oct. 14 that he hoped the program could be launched at the beginning of November.

Practical nursing classes will also be held in Victoria once space is obtained. The government is advertising for a director of this project.

Vocational classes will also be held in Victoria and at Nanaimo vocational institute.

Stelco Reports Drop in Sales

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP) — Decreased sales for the three months ended Sept. 30—and for the first nine months of the year—are reported by V. M. Schully, president of Steel Company of Canada Ltd., in a quarterly report to shareholders.

Sales in the three months totalled $64,556,950 compared with $82,342,987 in the corresponding period last year; and in the nine months, $220,786,175, compared with $236,632,651.

BOND DEALERS ELECT NEW OFFICERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — R. J. Broad of Royal Securities Ltd., Friday night was elected president of B.C. Bond Dealers' Association at its annual meeting here. He succeeds C. J. Olliphant.

V. Ben Williams of C. M. Oliver and Co. Ltd., was elected vice-president; J. O. Dods of Wood, Gundy and Co. Ltd., was named honorary secretary.

The executive committee includes W. Dalkin, W. E. Lewis, Malcolm Brown, J. E. Smart and Mr. Dods, all of Vancouver, and R. F. Hassen of Victoria.

PWA Eyes Prairie Services

VANCOUVER (CP) — D. S. McLaren, vice-president and managing director of Pacific Western Airlines Ltd., Friday reaffirmed his company's interest in Prairie airline services which Trans-Canada Air Lines has indicated they would like to vacate in early 1961.

"All Prairie services have been in the past, as they are today, the subject of a continuing, intensive study by the research department of Pacific Western," said Mr. McLaren.

"We shall continue our studies and when we feel we have developed the proper economic approach to the matter we will consider making known our proposals to Trans-Canada as requested," Mr. McLaren added.

Pacific Western currently operates a Prairie service between Edmonton, North Battleford, Prince Albert, Saskatoon and Regina. With head offices in Vancouver, it now provides the Pacific Coast, northern Alberta, Saskatchewan, the McKenzie district and the Arctic with scheduled air services.

NOV. 15 DEADLINE
Trans-Canada Air Lines asked Pacific Western to submit proposals by Nov. 15 with respect to its Winnipeg-Calgary flights and also, if interested, the Calgary-Edmonton operation.

In the latter case both Pacific Western and TCA realize that the Edmonton-Calgary service would require aircraft of a type at least comparable to the Viscounts now used, Mr. McLaren said.

TCA hopes for retirement of DC-3 aircraft now serving the Prairie runs from its scheduled services during early 1961. Operation of larger TCA aircraft, such as the Viscount, on the "milk run" to smaller Prairie centres would call for government expenditures up to $10,000,000 to bring airports up to minimum requirements.

A special curriculum is being prepared for use once classes can be started.

Education Minister Leslie Peterson announced Oct. 14 that he hoped the program could be launched at the beginning of November.

Practical nursing classes will also be held in Victoria once space is obtained. The government is advertising for a director of this project.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Oil Refiners Top Busy Industrials

By JOHN PICTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Uncertainty on the U.S. presidential election failed to dampen the stock market this weekend and all sections moved higher in the wake of a buoyant Wall Street.

On index at Toronto, industrials were up 8.75 at 492.23, golds were up 3.11 at 91.42, base metals were up 4.45 at 154.31 and western oils gained 2.32 at $2.59.

But the recent run on speculative issues came to a sudden end, as was suggested by the volume—less than 2,000,000 a day—and golds lost the favoritism that has been their hallmark in the past few weeks.

Prominent among industrials was the offer made to share holders of Chartered Trust, which caused the stock to jump $18.25 in one day. The stock had been a slower trader during the year, but turned over a fair quantity when it became known that an offer had been made to purchase outstanding capital at $85.35 a share.

Oil refineries were among the most active industrials, with Imperial and British-American scoring good gains, the latter running a higher crude capacity at its Calgary refinery.

WEAK SPELL
Steels ran into a weak spell, Montreal Locomotive touching a new low after its third quarter earnings dropped to five cents a share.

Among utilities, Bell Telephone and CPR were strengthened by corporation news: Indicated earnings for Bell for the first nine months was $1.87 a share—slightly higher than for the same period last year—while CPR's revenue for September was higher than for the same month last year.

Papers scored a production record for the first nine months and a number of stocks responded favorably, while, among assorted favorites, Canada Maltling scored sharp gains on news that the company intends redeeming its preferred stock and also declared the regular dividend of 50 cents plus an extra 50 cents.

Golds lacked the shine that brought them to prominence two weeks ago, but most senior producers managed modest gains.

Base metals were strong in most sections throughout the week, while western oils were at their best for a few months, on hopes that Ottawa will produce a solution to the increased use of Canadian-produced crude oil.

Of the 862 issues traded at Toronto this week, 395 advanced, 274 declined and 193 were unchanged.

Volume at Toronto this week was 9,349,000 shares, compared with the 10,367,000 shares traded last week. Value was $26,904,371 compared with $22,866,354.

At Montreal 451,129 shares of industrials and 865,469 of mines were traded, compared with 383,039 and 982,279, respectively, the previous week. Of 352 issues traded, 141 advanced, 79 declined and 132 were unchanged.

Trans-Canada Natural Gas Sales Soar

TORONTO (CP) — James W. Kerr, president of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited, said Friday his firm has set a record high of daily sales at 543,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas and "we now are operating on a profitable basis."

Mr. Kerr said the figure, set recently, "represents a very substantial increase over the peak day at the beginning of the heating season a year ago of 286,000,000 cubic feet."

He said average daily sales now run well past 500,000,000 cubic feet and that total sales for the last 12 months have been "70 per cent ahead of the same period in 1958-59."

"After the expected losses incurred this year and in 1959 it is significant that the present volume has allowed us to pass through the break-even point and we now are operating on a profitable basis."

Alberta Pacific Oils
Name New Directors

CALGARY (CP) — The board of directors of Alberta Pacific Consolidated Oils Ltd. was increased Thursday to 15 from 10 members.

The new board members are G. L. McMahon, W. G. McMahon, R. S. Rapp and D. B. McDougall, all of Calgary, and E. A. Vaughney of Jackson, Miss.

The new directors were voted in at the meeting with 1,885,000 votes and 818,000 votes were cast in favor of other directors nominated by Savanna Creek Oil and Gas Ltd. and Anaconda Petroleum Limited.

Drips Bring Firemen, Police

"Mr. Touchdown"

The G. F. and I... our youngest daughter... Drove back from Seattle... across "Water, We'd loads of time... no need to cram. So we gawked awhile... in Bellingham.

We aimlessly strolled... a shop-survey... And ran right into... the Bon Marche.

"Oh... L-O-O-K-I-T-Dad" and she gave me a pull. "Isn't THAT been... isn't THAT cool?"

I looked in their window, tight-lipped & mute. "Gee... Dad... you'd look sharp in that suit. Wouldn't he Mum... just look the BEST.

And THOSE brass buttons on the vest. Corduroy's the rage... and THAT green is nifty. "ALL 3 Pieces, JUST $29.50."

I looked at the G.F. she shrugged at me. I was yanked inside... despite my plea. A gal came up... Bon-smiling & keen.

"Wouldn't My Dad look great in that olive-green?" And those slim pants... have you his size?? They're called "Continental."

Dad YOU should get wise. They ripped off my coat, all having fun. I looked in the mirror, but wanted to run.

"Gee Dad... the lapels"... and I got a pat. I pulled in my tummy... I tried to look flat. Over my shoulders "Miss Bon" nuzzled her hands.

Then off the vest, she flicked a few strands. Some would say... she only did blink. But I KNEW in the mirror... she gave me the wink.

Rack on the street I felt some alarm. 'Cause I had their big box... under my arm. And our youngest was saying, "My Daddy-Dad."

Just wait till they see you... all campus clad? We'll... they SAW me alright, here in the store. And you never heard such a ruddy up-roar.

"Get a load of those legs," and similar bandv. A stenog whistled, sed... "ain't he the dandy."

"It" now droops in my cup-board, net to be seen. The Pos. on hangers... reversible coat in between. But I don't care that they thought me a clown.

'Cause my daughter sed... "Daddy, you're my MR. TOUCHDOWN."

HUMBER'S "Of Bastion Square"

PARIS — An American friend of ours named Schmitt was sleeping in his expensive Right Bank apartment when water started to drip down on his face. He turned on the light to discover that the water was coming from an apartment above his, the one which belonged to his landlady. Hoping she had drowned herself, Schmitt dressed slowly and walked gently upstairs and knocked on the door. There was no answer. He knocked again a little harder, but there was still no answer.

Finally, he decided to call the concierge. The concierge said that the landlady was out of town and he did not have the key to the apartment. Schmitt went back to his apartment and discovered the ceiling was getting wet. Fearing damage to his apartment, he decided to call the fire department.

Five minutes later the fire department, sirens screaming, arrived, waking everyone up in the building. They all rushed down to Schmitt's apartment and he explained the landlady's apartment was flooded. The other tenants, whom Schmitt hadn't met before, rejoiced at the tidings.

Schmitt broke out a bottle of wine and the tenants toasted the good news. In the meantime two firemen had tried to get into the apartment without success. They came down to Schmitt's apartment and complained.

One of the tenants said: "Why don't you break down the door with your axes?" "Do you think she'd mind?" "Of course not," Schmitt said. "You would be doing her a service." They offered one of the firemen a glass of wine while his buddy went back to get an ax.

The firemen went upstairs and Schmitt opened up another bottle of wine. As they heard the ax crashing against the door of the landlady's apartment, the tenants became friendlier with each other and started to exchange atrocity stories about the landlady.

Ten minutes later the firemen came down and said their door was very strong and they couldn't break it down.

Schmitt gave each of the firemen a glass of wine while all the tenants tried to think of a solution. Then an English tenant suggested: "Why don't you go up on a ladder and break her window?"

The firemen asked: "Do you think she'd mind?" The tenants, who were freezing from lack of heat, assured the firemen the landlady would be most grateful.

The firemen had another glass of wine, and then went down to hook up their ladder. Five minutes later the tenants heard the beautiful sound of an ax smashing against a pane of glass.

They raised their glasses through Schmitt's window, and toasted the firemen. Then they heard the sound of boots slurping through the landlady's living room. After five minutes they heard the axes smashing against the inside of the apartment and pretty soon the two firemen appeared again wreathed in smiles. "We managed to break the door from the inside," one said.

"Did you find the leak?" Schmitt asked. The firemen looked puzzled. "No, it isn't coming from that apartment. It must be coming from the apartment above."

"By love," said the Englishman. "That's my apartment." The firemen picked up their axes, but the Englishman shouted, "No, don't I'll let you in."

The Englishman went out with the firemen and came back with them in ten minutes. "Quite right," he said. "It was in my apartment. A silly leak in the kitchen, but it did no damage at all."

Schmitt opened another bottle of wine and everyone toasted the Englishman's good fortune. The firemen left, but the party continued to the early hours of the morning until the police arrived and said the neighbors in the other buildings were complaining about the noise.

Schmitt replied: "Wait until the landlady comes back. Then they'll really have something to complain about."

In the side streets, you can hear the steady sound of falling water—not the polite whisper of a fountain but the untamed roar of mountain water. It is this sound that leads you to the most spectacular and most popular fountain in Rome, newest point of call on the global route pattern of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

CPA inaugurated a new service to Rome March 4 via 400-mile-an-hour jet-prop Britannias from Toronto and Montreal, the first direct air route to Rome for Canadians.

The Fountain of Trevi is spectacular because the idea of placing a rocky landscape gushing with waterfalls, with Neptune and his steeds in violent action on the sedate and formal facade of a Renaissance palace, is startlingly improbable.

ROMANTIC SPOT No one seems to know how the custom of throwing a coin in the fountain to ensure one's return to Rome originated. A particularly romantic place by moonlight, the fountain has been mentioned in literature since the early 1800s. But the first mention of coin-throwing was in Hawthorne's, "The Marble Faun," published in 1860—just 100 years ago.

Since then the legend has caught on and varies in form; some say you must drink the water of the fountain first and then throw in the coin; it must be done on the last day of a visit; the coin must be a five-cent one; one must turn one's back to the water and throw a coin over your left shoulder.

Almost every visitor to Rome these days does so and at the height of the tourist season as much as $160 is removed when the fountain undergoes its weekly cleaning on a Tuesday morning. The money goes to hospitals and orphanages, with the cleaners also getting a share. Police in the area are kept busy keeping small boys from fishing out the coins which they have learned to do by many ingenious methods.

OTHER LEGENDS It is strange how such legends arise, but there are many in Rome. Bernini's Fountain of the Rivers in the Piazza Navona also has its share. One, that the artist was a bitter enemy of Borromini, the architect of the church just opposite the fountain, and that the figure of the River Nile has, therefore, covered her head in horror at the ugliness of the building; another, that the figure of the River Plate raises her arm to ward off the blow when this same church collapses on her.

One of the most attractive legends in Rome is about the Bocca della Verità—the Mouth of Truth. This is a huge stone mask, now in the vestibule of the church of Santa Maria in Cosmedin, which legend has it, will bite off your hand if you tell a lie while holding your hand in the mouth of the face.

All these legends contribute to the charm of Rome and are particularly interesting to the North American visitor whose country, being new, sometimes lacks such atmosphere.

GLORIES OF ANCIENT ROME ARE BLENDED WITH MODERN DAY

Rome Legends Interesting To Visitors From America

For anyone who has hummed the song, "Three Coins in a Fountain," it is a thrilling experience to turn the corner of a shabby little Roman street and come upon the origin of the song—the Fontana di Trevi.

This fountain takes its name from the word trivio, meaning intersection of three streets. It was designed by Nicola Salvi and completed in 1762. Over the rocks at its base, the water flows in jets and falls giving the impression of mountain brooks.

In the side streets, you can hear the steady sound of falling water—not the polite whisper of a fountain but the untamed roar of mountain water. It is this sound that leads you to the most spectacular and most popular fountain in Rome, newest point of call on the global route pattern of Canadian Pacific Airlines.

CPA inaugurated a new service to Rome March 4 via 400-mile-an-hour jet-prop Britannias from Toronto and Montreal, the first direct air route to Rome for Canadians.

The Fountain of Trevi is spectacular because the idea of placing a rocky landscape gushing with waterfalls, with Neptune and his steeds in violent

ROMANTIC SPOT No one seems to know how the custom of throwing a coin in the fountain to ensure one's return to Rome originated. A particularly romantic place by moonlight, the fountain has been mentioned in literature since the early 1800s. But the first mention of coin-throwing was in Hawthorne's, "The Marble Faun," published in 1860—just 100 years ago.

Ski Holiday in Europe Should Prove Popular

Canadian skiing enthusiasts in search of a change of scenery are expected to visit Europe in greatly increased numbers this winter. With the introduction of 17-day excursion fares allowing a $136 "across the board" reduction, skiing vacations in Europe now compare in cost to many Canadian fashionable winter resorts.

According to Scandinavian Airlines System's ski club, the enthusiast going overseas can budget as low as $500 for his package. This includes round-trip air fare from New York to such gateways as Oslo, Zurich and Geneva, 15 days at one of the small, surprisingly inexpensive inns where a room and three hearty meals runs to only $4 daily and local transportation to the resort.

Most popular of these are Norefjell, Norway; Beatenberg, Champéry, Lenk, Leysin, Montana, Verbena, Saas-Fee and Wildhaus, Switzerland. The selection can be expanded to include Wild-Schönau, Zell Am See and Badgastein, Austria.

NEW DEAL FOR SALMON

Promising great possibilities for future salmon propagation, is new Robertson Creek Spawning Channel near Sproat Lake which was officially opened Friday. This is first view salmon returning

Newest Salmon Farm Yields Spectacular First-Year Crop

By DOUG PEDEN

ALBERNI—The new deal for Pacific coast salmon officially went on display at Robertson Creek Spawning Channel Friday to the tune of enthusiastic comment by fishing enthusiasts and fisheries biologists.

Largest structure of its kind in the world, the man-made spawning ground 11.5 miles from Alberni was hailed as a significant development in fisheries research that could eventually revolutionize salmon propagation.

Officially opening the $256,000 project that was started in 1957, Federal Fisheries Minister J. Angus McLean told approximately 300 guests and observers that the channel was the "biggest and most complex system of its kind built to date," and that it was the forerunner of other projects that could increase salmon production by as much as five times in some areas.

"You may look forward to

Constant Flow, Right Temperatures

Its major objectives are:

1. To work toward the solution of problems associated with fish and hydro-electric power development and to study the requirements for spawning, incubation and rearing of spring and coho salmon.
2. To increase the present small runs of coho and spring salmon to the full potential of Robertson Creek and to introduce runs of pink salmon in the Somass River system.

Offering tremendous possibilities in the field of salmon farming, the Alberni channel sent its first crop of salmon fry to sea last spring.

Work had progressed far enough a year ago that 1,600,000 eyed eggs were planted in the channel.

'Thousands of Robertson Creeks'

"If we can increase output of fry by five times," he said, "and if we can assume ocean conditions will remain constant, we should have greatly increased returns of adult salmon."

"There are thousands of Robertson Creeks," he added. Concrete evidence of success of the Robertson Creek project may be evident next year, when the first return run of pink salmon, which have a two-year cycle, returns to the channel.

More pink salmon eggs are being planted this year and eggs of coho and spring salmon, which have cycles of three and four years, respectively, will be planted next year.

Lady Wants Her Offspring In Baseball

CHICAGO (AP)—The remarried widow of the former owner of Kansas City Athletics contended in court Friday she wants their 10-year-old son to be an owner of the club some day.

Mrs. Warren W. Humes of New York, whose former husband Arnold M. Johnson owned 52 per cent of the A's stock, continued to block proposed sale of controlling interest in the club for about $3,500,000.

Arguments concerning disposal of the stock were heard by probate Judge Robert J. Dunne, who said he will decide Monday whether the court has jurisdiction to order the stock sale.

The City National Bank of Chicago, co-executor of Johnson's estate with Mrs. Humes, has asked the court to determine how Johnson's 52 per cent stock should be voted at a Nov. 9 meeting of club stockholders in Chicago.

The bank reported it now has two offers from Kansas City and St. Louis groups.

Hal's Trademark Shows As Bucks Throw Cats

Vics Badly Disorganized By Solid Checking Display

Portland 5, Victoria 2
By ERNIE FEDORUK

Hal Laycoe's trademark was evident—painfully to some—and nobody was more impressed or more pained than Victoria Cougar coach George Agar.

"They," George sadly told the world, "checked us into the ice."

They, in this instance the Portland Buckaroos, did just that. And on that score, much of the credit for Portland's 5-2 Western Hockey League decision over Cougars Friday night must go to Laycoe.

Professor Laycoe advocates a two-way game. Perhaps it's a throwback to the days when Hal toiled on blue-lines in the National League. Or perhaps it's just because it happens to be written into the coaching manual.

Just Going Through Motions?

At any rate, Laycoe's Western League teams have always been regarded for their two-way forwards. Once a defence man, always a defenceman . . . and Laycoe knows that nothing helps a rearguard look good as do good checking forwards.

That was the principle he used last season when he coached Cougars into the league final.

It's also a principle Agar heartily endorses. He endorsed it Friday, but Cougars failed to cash in because, in his own words: "We did everything wrong. Our defence wasn't helping our forwards and our forwards weren't helping the defence."

"It was very sad."

That the Cougars looked a wee bit sick is true. But you can't blame it all on the Cougars. Some of that belongs to Laycoe's checkers, who showed more desire and a greater cohesion.

The sad thing about a good checking team is that they make the other people look bad. The Cougars were pushed into making defensive mistakes. On offence, their hurried thrusts never really gave Portland goalie Don Head a chance to show his best form.

Head is a rotund veteran of senior amateur ranks and a member last year of Canada's Olympic team. Laycoe stands by his goalie, naturally, and thinks him a good one. Other reports are less favorable, but the Cougars never really did get a chance to find out for themselves if Head is a good one or just so-so.

Head made 25 stops, but the honest "hot ones" could be counted on one hand. Marcel Pelletier, protecting the Victoria cage, was called upon to make 30 saves. All in all, the shots on goal provide a good indication of how the play went.

Good Turnout

The 3,215 fans who turned out—best Memorial Arena crowd since opening night—will quickly agree that the ex-Cougars now with Portland have lost none of their touch. It was the ex-Cats who provided the big spark.

Artful Arthur Jones, Victoria's top scorer last term, pumped in a pair of goals while Arnie Schmutz and Gord Haworth got one each. Bucks' other goal went to Reggie Primeau.

Elliott Chorley and rookie Don Wilson scored for Victoria. The goal was Chorley's third in three games. But the pick of the Cougar team seemed to be wingers Jim Moro and Bert Fizzell, a pair of speedsters who showed the greatest hustle.

ICE CHIPS: Portland's Jack Blonda wasted no time in stepping to the top of the fans' boo parade by clubbing a fan three times with his stick . . . The unidentified youth, who apparently grabbed at Blonda's sweater as teams were moving to the dressing room at the end of the second period, was taken to the Cougar dressing room for treatment of a head cut . . . A half-dozen stitches were required . . .

Medics Kept Busy

It was a busy night for the medics . . . Another fan was treated after being hit by a puck that went astray, and Head picked up a patching job for a cut over an eye . . . The goalie was injured during a pileup in the first period . . . The game was delayed eight minutes while Head went off for repairs . . . Cougars continue to run into most of their grief in trying to clear from their own zone . . . It was a poor night to pick a defensive star, but Victoria's Jim (Red Eye) Hay continues to turn in solid performances . . .

Cougars step on the road for their next two games, playing in Vancouver Tuesday and at Spokane on Wednesday . . . Next home game will be Friday against Spokane . . . Bill Saunders checked into camp earlier in the day but Agar isn't sure when the new winger will make his first start . . . And would it help any if someone bought the new linesman a louder whistle?

Rookies Enjoy A Great Night

It was a great night for the rookies Friday in the Western Hockey League.

Bob Goebel scored the winner in overtime at Edmonton to give Flyers a 4-3 victory over Winnipeg Warriors and sole possession of first place. At Vancouver, rookie Gerry Esch scored midway through the last period and the goal stood up as the Stampede moved to within a single point of third place with a 1-0 victory over the Canucks.

TIE FOR THIRD

Flyers now hold a two-point edge over the Warriors and four points on Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle, all tied for third place with 10. Calgary follows with nine and the Bucks have five. Spokane Comets are in the cellar with two points in seven games.

Tonight at Seattle, Calgary plays its fourth game in a week on a swing through the coast section. Vancouver is at Spokane while Portland takes on the Totems in Seattle in Sunday's game.

Winning goals are a habit with Flyers' rookies. Goebel's winner was his second of the year and linemate Ed Joyal has turned the trick three times.

Friday, Goebel scored two goals for Edmonton.

Joyal also had a goal for Gord Labossiere. For the Warriors Don Bamburak, Ray Brunel, and Gerry Brissan scored singles.

Esch's winner also was his second this year. But he had to share the glory with portly veteran Lucien Dechene, who guards the nets for Calgary.

Additional Stake Goes to Coaches

Oak Bay Police are in a familiar spot this weekend with every intention of climbing into more equally accursed locations.

The juvenile Canadian football entry will play Victoria Vampires in the Vancouver Island semi-finals Sunday with full intention of hanging onto the provincial title they won last season.

PASCUAL AILING

Gate Potential Has Cal Smiling

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The ex-Washington Senators are brimful with optimism over their new home but worried about Camillo Pascual.

Owner Calvin Griffith, transplanting his American League club to Minneapolis-St. Paul, wants to send his ace pitcher to the Mayo Clinic for an examination.

Pascual injured his arm in the latter part of the season and apparently has not recovered fully.

Pascual is the anchorman of a staff Griffith admitted "needs four or five new faces."

The owner told reporters Friday he looks to Pascual, Pete Ramos, Don Lee, Chuck Stobbs and Jack Kralick to serve as the core of his staff.

But nobody, so far, has shown much willingness to talk trade with Griffith except the fellows who want to grab his stars like catcher Earl Battey and Pascual.

LOVES THAT POTENTIAL

While he declined to guess at next year's attendance in his new big league-craving ballpark, Griffith labeled the attendance potential as "fantastic."

Griffith still hasn't decided on a name for the Minneapolis-St. Paul club. He has heard such suggestions as Bunyans, Moose, Twins, and Northern Stars.

His comptroller, Oswald Bluge, offered Griffith, to honor the name of one of baseball's pioneer families. Griffith has no immediate comment on that, but the name may catch on.

Hucul will see his first action with the Comets Wednesday when Victoria Cougars visit Spokane.

Hucul, who was with defending champion Vancouver Canucks last season, resigned his job as a Calgary policeman to sign with Comets, McBride said.

Two Pilots Quit Okanagan Loop

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—The resignation of two coaches and recurring financial woes put the Okanagan Senior Hockey League back in the doldrums Friday.

Ray Powell, coach of Kelowna Packers, quit his post Thursday night. Willie Schmidt, playing-coach of Kamloops Chiefs, disclosed his resignation Friday. Powell quit because of a salary dispute between himself and his players while Schmidt gave business reasons.

Ironically, the two clubs are the two with the league's worst money worries.

Kelowna threatened to withdraw from the league because of lack of players and fan support after playing only one game last month, but remained in the OSHL after an emergency public meeting.

The Kamloops club learned Thursday it had managed to

Idaho Anglers Spoil Washington Efforts

SEATTLE (AP)—Because of the number of salmon being taken by sports fishermen in Idaho, Milo Moore, Washington's director of fisheries, recommended permanent closure of the upper reaches of the Columbia River system.

Moore said drastic conservation action is needed and estimated the annual sports catch of chinooks in Idaho at 45,000 since 1954 and said in 1957 the total soared to 78,000.

"No matter how much we conserve salmon in Washington, it doesn't do much good unless Idaho lets them alone up there," Moore said.

The fisheries director recommended construction of a federal fish hatchery near Hagerman, Idaho, to produce an average adult run of 45,000 steelhead. He suggested a second hatchery to rear 4,500,000 trout annually and said other hatcheries should be built in Oregon and eastern Washington to compensate for elimination of salmon sport fisheries in those areas.

He will submit his proposals at a meeting of the Pacific Marine Fisheries Commission in Portland Nov. 28-30.

Cause of Big Crash? Totems Run Into Oaks

SPORTS DIARY

By JIMMY CANNON

NEW YORK—This was in May of '51 when the Giants played baseball at the Polo Grounds. There was a lot of talk about a kid named Willie Mays, who belonged to the American Association and people said he could go as far as Joe DiMaggio for a fly ball.

"I hear he's a showboat," a guy told Alvin Dark, who this week has been made manager of the Giants.

"He must be pretty good," said Dark, who had been traded down from Boston by the Braves with Eddie Stanky to play shortstop.

"A real hot dog," said the guy. "His cap flies off every time he goes to first base."

"If he can help us," said Dark, who comes from Louisiana and knew Mays was a Negro, "I'll pick it up for him, and put it on his head."

On that team, Mays, who was the star, was also the mascot. It delighted Willie when Dark and Stanky kidded him. He was 18 and he wasn't sure he was a big-leaguer. He would become dependent if he struck out or popped up with a big run on the bases.

Often he wept in the clubhouse, a man-bodied boy among strangers. They, along with Leo Durocher, who managed them, worked to diminish Willie's despair. It was as if part of their job was to keep him laughing-between games.

"I wish Alvin and Eddie were still here," Willie grieved nine years later.

"Why?" I asked.

"There's no one to help me," Mays said.

That was when Bill Rigney was the manager. He considered what Willie said to be a rebuke. He called a meeting which was a sort of kangaroo court and suggested Willie had been misquoted. Willie didn't back down. He was proud of being close to Durocher, Dark and Stanky. Baseball was never the same for Mays after they left the Giants.

Willie Mays Is Greatest Doubter

You have to explain to Mays how good he really is. You must keep at it, tell it to him the first day of spring training and repeat it the next and every one after that. The only man connected with the sport who doubts that Willie Mays is the greatest player of his time is Willie Mays.

It started wrong with Rigney. Some of the lesser players resented Durocher's pampering of Mays. It was as if, they complained, Willie played all nine positions. This was a situation Rigney thought he could rectify. He described Mays as just another ball-player on a squad of 25.

Flattery inspires Mays. Neglect depresses him. This description hurt Mays. He decided Rigney didn't like him. Since then, there has always been an unspoken animosity between the manager and the star who refuses to be one. That's the main reason why Horace Stoneham, the president of the Giants, hired Dark to run his team. He knows that Dark understands Willie.

There is, of course, more to it than that. But Dark was a Giant and that's important to Stoneham, who is an obstinately sentimental man. The first manager he appointed after he took over the franchise was Mel Ott. He reluctantly let him go for Durocher. This was strictly a business arrangement. Durocher won a couple of pennants for him, but Stoneham never considered him a Giant.

After Durocher came Rigney, who was a handy man around the infield with the teams that won in '51 and '54. Stoneham soured on him and put Tom Sheehan to work when Durocher was available. Leo wanted the spot and he knows how to con Willie and, next to Casey Stengel, is the most famous manager in baseball. But no one could straighten him out with Stoneham. And a lot of people tried.

Managers never dominated Dark. They were right or they were wrong and he refused to go along if he disagreed with them.

Now he returns to a team of strangers because only Mays was there when he was. It is a club that quit playing ball last year. They insulted Sheehan with their malingering and Dark will have to be harsh with them because they reject kindness as a sign of weakness.

They will discover Dark will be as tough as he has to be. It's up to them.

They said there would be some surprises served up in the Senior Boys' Inter-High Basketball League, and how right they were!

And the crash you heard coming from Victoria High School Friday night, may be only the beginning.

Vic High Totems, defending city champs, fell 46-38 before the onslaught of Royal Oak as the season opened on two fronts. At Mount View, a lesser surprise was North Saanich's 32-30 squeaker over the host team.

OAK BAY WINS

In the night's other game, Oak Bay tossed out a smooth passing attack to trample St. Louis College, 42-27, also at Mount View.

But the big show was at Vic High. There, a great display of Jim Cunningham sparked the Oaks to their victory. Royal Oak won only two games all last season.

Cunningham came up with a 28-point display. He had a field day at the charity line, sinking 11 of 12 free shots.

Bob Harris topped the Totems with 14 points.

Mike Cranston led Oak Bay's attack with 17 points while Maloney was best for St. Louis with 15.

SKERMER MISSED

North Saanich vaulted into an eighth place lead after the first quarter, then doggedly held on for their slim margin of victory. Mount View sorely missed the services of big Rick Skermer, who wasn't able to dress for the season's opener.

Bill Brain emerged as the Saanich team's hero, sinking the tying and winning baskets in the last 40 seconds. He finished with a total of 13 points.

Ray Williams came up with 16 points, including 10 in the wild, last quarter, to lead Hornets.

Royal Oak-Nelson—Underwood 4, Green, McDowell, Pearl 2, Johnson 6, Cunningham 28, Eckhart 2, Cumberland Total—46.

Victoria-Cowley 2, Gregory 3, Tuzar 2, McKeachie, Goldsmith 4, Lauvaas 5, Hallett, Harris 4, Gallo 4, Morris, Wal, Worwood, Total—38.

Oak Bay-Doug Richardson, Dave Krasney 2, John Fraser 4, Gord Detwiler, Dave Pollock, J. J. Camp 5, Mike Cranston 17, Barry Entwistle 6, Murray Johnston 6, Norma Zaherwood, Bruce Robertson, Total—42.

St. Louis College—Grenier 1, Walter 3, Davis, Maloney 15, Trunczek, Hoffman 5, Yalloway, Ducar 2, Total—27.

North Saanich—Doug Brown, Bob McDonald, Rick Eckert 4, Richard Beal, Mike Nunn 8, Dick Torley, Doug Alexander, Ted Tuttle 4, Bill Brain 13, Total—32.

Ex-Lions Sparkle In Losing Causes

BOSTON (CP)—Three touchdown passes by Boston quarterback Butch Songin, two within 74 seconds in the first quarter, sparked Boston Patriots to a 34-28 American Football League victory over Oakland Raiders, Friday.

Victory, before 8,000 fans, snapped a three-game Boston losing streak.

Tony Teresa, former B.C. Lion halfback, scored three touchdowns for Oakland, including two in the final 15 minutes.

At New York, quarterback Jack Kemp scored one touchdown, set up another with a spectacular 51-yard pass and launched Los Angeles halfback Paul Lowe on a 62-yard scoring jaunt as the Chargers rolled over New York Titans 21-7.

Los Angeles' defence prevented the Titans from launching anything that resembled a drive until the third quarter when quarterback Al Dorow, also a former B.C. Lion, capped an 80-yard drive with a 19-yard touchdown pass to Dewey Bohring before 19,000 fans.

Little Marg Has Big Week

By MICHAEL ROSE

Marg Cooper says she would rather bowl than eat.

If this is an exaggeration it's a forgivable one in view of her record this past week.

The five-foot-three kegler started Monday night in the women's tenpin league at Aurora with her first 600 triple and the city's first by a woman this season.

Combining games of 236 and 201 with a heartbreaking 166 she went over the top for 603.

Wednesday night she rolled 546 in the senior league and followed this Friday in the mixed loop with 532.

This is the performance of a girl who thought bowling was "a stupid game" a short six seasons ago.

"One day my sister was short on her team," she said, "so I filled in and have been at it ever since."

Husband Dave owns a plumbing concern in the city and Marg spends most days helping out at the office, so daytime practices are few and far between.

Dave bowls too, but "only fivepins." "I guess he hasn't the muscles I have."

Weighing in at 119 pounds, she totes a 16-pound ball, which is a hefty load to pack.

While we are on the subject of women's tenpins it should be noted that the distaff scores at Aurora this week average about 40 pins higher than the previous period.

Hugh Bryan was high man at the tenpin temple with 609 (224) and was the only other bowler to break 600.

There were 134 triples of 500 or better posted and singles over 200 totalled 56.

On the fivepin side things were not so lively.

At Esquimalt, Myrtle Martin paced the girls with an 807 (342) followed by Dot McKinnon with 743.

Al Majorki took high triple honors at the lanes with 850 and his top single of 348 was also good enough for first place.

Al was followed by M. Cunningham, 793; Reg Waggoner, 782; Bob McLeod, 768, and Gerry Roscamp, 764 (314).

POPPED PEEPER'S PICK PROVED A POOR CHOICE

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—Joey Archibald, former world featherweight champion of the world, came out of his home and out of retirement early Friday to take a decision over a Peeping Tom.

Joey, who hasn't boxed since 1943, indicated the bout in front of his home before a crowd of exactly no one was one of the toughest of his career.

The loser, six-footer Albert R. Messier, 31, of Pawtucket, pleaded guilty later to a Peeping-Tom charge. The case was continued.

Joey won the world championship April 18, 1939.

Chico Gets More Than Buck a Game

OTTAWA (CP)—Ted Hill, president of Sudbury Wolves, denied Friday in a telegram to Eastern Professional Hockey League president Edward J. Houston that assistant trainer Chico Kovzurok was signed by Wolves for a five-game tryout as a player for $1.

Hill's telegram followed a demand made by Houston for an explanation of the use being made of Kovzurok, whose signing made it possible for the Wolves to comply with a league rule on the number of rookie players each club must carry on its roster.

Hill said Kovzurok was not being paid 20 cents a game but a sum comparable with that paid other rookies. He suggested enterprising newspaper men had "dreamed up" the $1 contract story.

Houston, announcing receipt of Hill's telegram, said he will check the statements and make a decision whether to take any action early next week.

'Live' Theatre For Drama Club

LAKE COWICHAN — When the Lake Cowichan Drama Club stages its first production of the season this month, it will be in a theatre designed and equipped especially for live productions.

Every amateur drama club dreams of having its own theatre, and for Lake Cowichan club members this dream has come at least partly true.

Management of the Lake Theatre in the village earlier this year offered the club full use of the movie house for all rehearsals and productions.

At the time the drama club was considering building its own theatre, but rather than conflict with a community centre building program, it accepted the offer and has since spent $1,600 in equipping the theatre for live drama.

The stage has been enlarged, storage space and dressing rooms provided, and a complete lighting unit and proscenium curtains installed.

As a result, the group will open a new season Nov. 14 in a modern, attractive theatre with a seating capacity of 385, complete with perspective floor and stage, excellent acoustics, and all the trimmings of professional theatre.

For the opening production set for Nov. 14 and 15, the group has chosen the ribald comedy "The Three Cuckolds," made into a play by Leon Katz from an anonymous Commedia Dell'Arte scenario. This presentation will be its Canadian premiere.

In rehearsal seven weeks, it promises to be a fast-moving, polished production. Yvonne Green is the director and Adrian Pecknold has the male lead. Others in the cast are Helen McDougall, Yvette Friday, Addie Pecknold, Brent Friday, Keith Tracy, Paul Klevin, Allan Vance, Alec Walker and Toby Fantilla.

The club began planning for its own theatre after sweeping most of the awards in the B.C. one-act festival at Trail two years ago. Yvonne Green won honors as top director, and Adrian Pecknold as the festival's outstanding actor.

Winter Care of 'Mums Insures 1961 Display

By JACK BEASTALL

The main work in the home garden this weekend will be lifting the chrysanthemum roots and placing them in storage for the winter.

The chrysanthemum enthusiasts and the commercial growers already have most of their outdoor varieties safely tucked away, but home gardeners seem a little tardy with this work.

If you grow only the husky dark bronze November flowering variety which abounds in local gardens and seems to survive every kind of weather and treatment, the idea of winter storage may seem incredible.

Even these toughies would improve with a little care, for originally they were magnificent flowers.

The modern chrysanthemum, as seen at the recent fall flower shows, cannot be relied upon to come through our kind of winter in the open garden. They seem to resent periods of rain alternated with sunny days and frosty nights.

So we lift the old roots (stools is the professional term) and store them where they are protected without any coddling.

There is no place better than an unheated greenhouse or a coldframe. Here they will be protected from rain, have good light, can receive plenty of air in mild or sunny weather, and be given a little extra covering on frosty nights.

Before the stools are lifted the top growth has to be removed, so the first step is to gather all blooms which are not too far spent or badly weathered.

If there are too many blooms for use in the home, old age pensioners, charitable institutions, recreation and reading centres would appreciate the surplus, or the little woman in the next block who had so much trouble in the family might find sunshine and hope in a bouquet.

The next important step is to see that each root has a correct name label attached.

There are a multitude of plants which can be, and are, grown without the slightest worry about names, but chrysanthemums and roses are not among them. The variety conversation among enthusiasts, also factors in culture.

Cut off the top growth just above soil level and tie the name tag to one of the remaining stubs.

If you can figure some way to double check on the tags before the stools are lifted, so much the better. It is surprising how easily tags and roots get crossed up even when the greatest of care is exercised.

From this point the method of handling will depend on the number of plants involved and the facilities available for storage.

In some instances small wooden boxes, such as tomato crates, about six inches deep and large enough to hold from six to eight stools, will be found convenient for carrying and for packing closely in the storage space.

Boxes also help if the stools have to be removed to warmer quarters in spring to speed the development of growths to be used as cutting.

Sometimes the limited space in a small coldframe precludes the use of boxes, in which case the stools are packed closely together on the soil of the frame.

Whether the stools go into boxes or not, soil is packed around them and between them to keep the roots in good condition.

When boxes are used they can be filled to the bed or border, and the moved to the greenhouse or coldframe. If boxes are not used, the lifted stools are carried in the wheelbarrow to the coldframe, keeping the rootballs intact with as much soil adhering as possible.

A digging fork is used for lifting the stools as it tends to pull the longer roots from the damp soil whereas a spade cuts them.

Constant attention is needed while the stools are in storage. During mild and rainy weather the coldframe or greenhouse must have free ventilation day and night, the main object being to keep the stools from being soaked with rain.

Coldframe covers will need propping open with wooden blocks, and greenhouse vents

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

This is fruit tree planting month; also good for shade and ornamental trees and shrubs.

Outdoor planters and window boxes which are still empty, can be attractively filled with dwarf box, aucuba, creeping euonymus and heathers.

Plant lily bulbs as soon as available. They like rich, well drained soil, so dig deeply.

Climbing plants such as clematis, wisteria, passion flower and honeysuckle all do well if planted in fall.

As chrysanthemums go out of flower, lift the roots to store in cold frame in winter.

If looking for something different, try a fig tree in a partly sheltered spot. The fresh figs are delicious.

Grapes still on outdoor vines should be cut and ripened in an airy room or porch at about 60 degrees F. Leave a six-inch stem on each bunch, and insert it in neck of bottle of water.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. Is it possible to grow tuberoses here?—J.W. Sidney.

A. They can be grown successfully here only in a greenhouse, or started in pots indoors and planted out in mid-June. Get flowering size roots in early spring, pot up into a rich, sandy soil, and provide bottom heat to get them started. When growing well, move to a sunny shelf, water freely, and give liquid fertilizer occasionally. Garden encyclopedias list tuberoses under Polianthes tuberosa.

Q—This year the grapes on the vine in my greenhouse all became shrivelled. Can you suggest any reason? H.S. Lake Hill.

A—Shrivelling of grapes, known as shanking, is usually due to a poor soil and insufficient water during spring and summer. Keep ventilators open now to ripen the vine for next year. Prune in December. Fork over the bed now, and add well rotted cow manure or compost and bone-meal in January. Remember to water copiously during spring and summer.

Q. Can I leave leeks in the garden a bit longer, or will the cold hurt them?—Mrs. J. L. Fairfield.

A. Leeks are a winter vegetable crop here, and may safely be left in the garden until spring, usually about the beginning of April, after which time they begin to deteriorate. Use whenever needed during winter.

Egyptian Refrigeration Basic Method

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Egyptians, about the time the first pyramids were being built, pioneered a method of refrigeration whose principles, considerably refined, are used today.

They filled shallow earthen jars with boiling water and exposed them to the night air on the roofs of houses. Slaves kept the outsides of the jars moistened and the resulting evaporation cooled the water. Carried to them by fast slave messengers, the Egyptian nobles had civilization's first running cold water.

Victorians Favor Kennedy for President 8 to 1 Over Nixon

It's a landslide for Kennedy, according to a Victoria poll taken by the Times.

Victorians polled favor John Kennedy 8 to 1 over Richard Nixon in Tuesday's U.S. presidential election.

MONTE ROBERTS

It is reassuring to note the sane, sensible citizens of this, the fairest city of them all, have accepted the news of increased plane fares to Vancouver with very little running around in the streets screaming "the sky is falling."

In fact, the average reaction appears to be "Izzatso? Who's going to win the Grey Cup?"

My personal reaction is not quite the same as that of the sane, sensible citizens.

My reaction is one of great enthusiasm.

For years I have been able to save only five dollars by not taking the plane to Vancouver.

Now I can save SEVEN dollars by not taking the plane to Vancouver!

Imagine, all the pleasure of not going to Vancouver, and at the same time saving SEVEN dollars!

I have often planned trips to Vancouver with only one objective in mind; to find a reason to cancel the trip and savor the fact I have once more failed to go to Vancouver.

Those of us who get innocent amusement out of not going to Vancouver never had it so good.

There are so many ways to not go to Vancouver, even in the off-season, like:

We can not go by not driving up the Malahat and not boarding a CPR ship at Nanaimo or a Black Ball Ferry at Departure Bay.

We can not go by not driving to Swartz Bay and ignoring Mr. Sidney or Mr. Howie-do-you-speak-it?

We can not go by avoiding Washington State Ferries' scenic route through the San Juan Islands, or we can even not go right from the Inner Harbor by not catching Black Ball Transport's Mr. Coho (lots of us are good at not catching cohos) and not driving down the Olympic Peninsula.

Pretty soon, maybe, we will be able to not go to Vancouver via Bellingham in a 40-mile-per-hour hydrofoil.

Never before in history have the kindly transportation companies offered so many alternate ways to not go to Vancouver.

Now Trans-Canada Air Lines has come along, and added a bonus: an extra saving of two dollars every time we non-goers don't go.

It wouldn't surprise me at all to see all the other transportation companies follow suit, raise their rates, and make it financially possible to live in this, the fairest city of them all.

Bless you, T. C. and also A.

A number of people queried said that when the campaign started they thought Nixon was the winner. But the charm, confidence, sudden maturity of Kennedy has swung their opinions.

Another factor, they say, is the traditional tendency to favor Democrats in Canada.

But, wishful thinking aside, the majority felt that Kennedy had been able to sell himself to the American public more successfully.

Nixon's image, said one, was "untrustworthy."

Only one person mentioned the issue of religion—Kennedy is a Catholic—and he thought it had not materialized to the extent expected.

Here are the verdicts:

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, chairman, B.C. Power Commission: "I think the likelihood is that Kennedy will win. On the whole, the country is normally Democrat."

SILVER WINGS of a United Airlines stewardess have been won by Marie D. Allen, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Smith, 1155 Wychbury Ave., after training at the stewardess school in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Miss Allen is serving on aircraft flying out of Los Angeles.

BIG JUMP OVER LAST YEAR

Over 3 Million Visited Parks

More than 3,100,000 people visited B.C.'s parks this summer.

Preliminary figures compiled by the recreation department show a total of 2,444,000 visits to camp and picnic sites, plus 660,000 overnight visits to camps.

This year's season—from April 1 to Sept. 30—shows a big jump in park use from 1959, when a total of 2,700,000 visits was recorded.

The increase is partly due to a number of new camp and picnic sites opened during the year, an official of the parks branch of the recreation department said today.

They include 50 camp and 20 picnic sites at Bamberton Park and 150 picnic sites at Sproat Lake on Vancouver Island.

ON THE NOSE

"In 1956 we predicted there would be 3,000,000 visits this year," said the parks official.

This represents a one-third increase in use of parks since then. The total visits in '56 was 2,000,000.

The big drawing card in the province is Cultus Lake in the Fraser Valley. It had a total of 400,000 visits this year.

SECOND

The Island's Miracle Beach is number two, with 173,000 total visits.

Next came Alouette Lake, 127,000; Shuswap Lake, 125,000; and Goldstream Park, on the Island, with 118,000.

There are 163 parks in the province, covering 8,400,000 acres. There are 2,800 camp sites.

DR. HITSCHMANOVA... one-woman drive

'REACHING FOR SUN'

Relief Campaigner To Show Film Here

Canada's "one-woman relief campaign," Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, will visit Victoria Nov. 24 and show a new color film of her work in the Far East, at the Ingraham Hotel on Douglas Street.

The film, entitled "Reaching for the Sun," was made by a young Toronto couple who accompanied Dr. Hitschmanova on her mission and contributed their work, on an anonymous basis, to the United Nations Service cause.

Also on display at the Nov. 24 meeting will be the dolls made by Victoria teenagers under the Hudson's Bay Company's Teen program.

Commission chairman Frank Mulliner said today no definite date had been set, "but there is no hurry."

He termed it "a shame" the matter had ever come to public notice.

It was an internal matter, which could be competently handled by the responsible commission members, he said.

Decision to meet the council committee was made at a commission meeting Friday.

He made it clear the resignations had not shaken the confidence of the commission in Memorial Arena manager Joe Dukowski.

However, Mr. Dukowski, he said, had been reprimanded by the commission for employing two members of his family on the arena staff and was forced to give them dismissal notices.

Magistrate

Too Upset

To Hear Case

Disturbed and annoyed by a young man's defence of a charge of drinking in public, Magistrate William Ostler disqualified himself Friday from hearing the trials of three others who have pleaded not guilty to the same offence.

Hans W. F. van Leeuwen, 1253 Hastings, was fined $50 or 30 days at hard labor when he was found guilty of drinking beer in a car parked atop Gonzales Hill, in Walbran Park.

His trial in Oak Bay police court was the first of four which were slated to be heard, but now the trials of Donald Nelson, Beryl Fisher and Lucille Young must be heard by another magistrate.

All were remanded to Nov. 18 for trial.

Mr. Ostler said, after finding inconsistencies in the accused Leeuwen's story, that he would be biased toward the others if he were to judge them.

DRIVER FINED IN BATTLE OF 'CADDIES'

Motorist Arthur John Shaffer, 2810 Quenston, was fined $50 and his licence was suspended, following collision of two "caddies" on Beach at Newport recently.

Shaffer was charged in Oak Bay police court Friday with careless driving after his car—a "Caddy"—was in collision with a golf "caddy" cart being trundled across Beach by a golfer.

Police said Shaffer approached the golfer, who was in a group, blew his horn and kept going at a speed estimated at 35-40. At that point Beach runs through part of Victoria Golf Club course.

PNR Holdup May Result In New Laws

By FRANK RUTTER, Times Legislative Reporter

New legislation is expected at the next B.C. session to untangle the wrangle around the Pacific Northern Railway.

Meanwhile work on the railway is stalled for the winter.

It appears that amendments to the Public Utilities Act and the Railway Act are the only answers to a legal battle now stalled before the courts and the cabinet.

The cabinet has been left with the thorny dilemma: Is the PNR a public utility in fact, and has it started work on a public utility?

LARGER STAKES

Far more than the PNR is really at stake.

The power of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission and the government to regulate railways, pipelines and other services is affected.

The key to the entire issue is the definition of a public utility.

The PNR claims it is not one, and is subject only to the Railway Act.

The PUC claims it is and is subject to its jurisdiction—involving a public hearing on PNR plans.

APPEAL DELAYED

The B.C. Appeal Court has delayed hearing an appeal by the PNR against the finding of the PUC that it is a public utility.

The excuse for the delay is that the cabinet hasn't issued an order following up on the PUC finding, made after a public hearing Oct. 4.

The cabinet is on the spot—it will either offend the PUC, or the railway, and the backers of the huge Peace River hydro project, the Wenner-Gren interests.

The PUC claims all railways and pipelines must apply to it for a certificate before starting construction. It also claims the right to set rates for them.

The Railway Act gives the railway minister full power over approving construction plans and also setting rates. The Pipelines Act does the same.

What the several interested parties involved hope is that the government will take away from the PUC the right to approve initial plans and construction, and take away from the Railway and Pipelines Acts the power to set rates.

This would leave the PUC in the role it was originally intended—that of a rate-setting and rate-watching body.

In the meantime, however, no more work is being done on the PNR, which is supposed to run 700 miles from Summit Lake to the Yukon. So far, only clearing has been done on the first three miles.

The government will have to wait for the next legislative session before taking action, which leaves the PNR idle all winter and the way open for some tough political tussles on the floor of the House.

PARK DEBATES TO BE JOINED BY STUDENTS

Two Grade 12 pupils of Esquimalt High will add their voices and opinions Sunday in debate, in the speaker's corner of Beacon Hill Park.

Perry Mattie and Dan Bule, both aged 17, and interested in the political field, will argue the future of the conservative world versus the future of the radical world.

Women

Victoria Daily Times SAT., NOV. 5, 1960 19

"Is this really me?" chuckles Mrs. M. Allum as she does a quick "clean-up" job during the mid-evening coffee-break. Both Mrs. Allum and her co-students insist that grease comes off in a wink of an eye. "And after all," she asks, "isn't it true that most gals can do with a little skin lubricant?"

Showing how not to change a tire are Mrs. Allum, left, and her two friends, Mrs. R. Beveridge and Mrs. E. Pitchford. After a little instruction, however, they removed the tire in expert fashion and had a new one in place. No chance of these gals getting stuck with a "flat" on the highway!

Back Seat Driving? Not for These Girls!

Although restricted to a wheelchair, Mrs. J. E. Wilks thoroughly enjoys driving the family car. Determined to find out what makes her car "tick" she reassembles a carburetor during the evening class.

Every Thursday evening, an enthusiastic group of women gather in an automotive repair shop in the city to delve into the mysteries surrounding the family car and "what makes it tick". They're members of the local YWCA's motor mechanics' class and they receive expert instruction from Alec Hutchison, assistant service manager of Jameson Motors. All of them report in "working rig"! After all—you're bound to get dirtied up chasing an elusive wiring system—but it's worth it in the long run! Half of the eight-week course is completed and their instructor reports the majority of his pupils are now taking a successful whirl at doing maintenance work on their own cars.

One student, whose husband is away on business a great deal, is already expert at getting the tractor and two family cars in top working order. As for the superstition that the average woman dives for a hairpin or a rubber band whenever car troubles appear—these gals will tell you—it's strictly an "old wives' tale"!

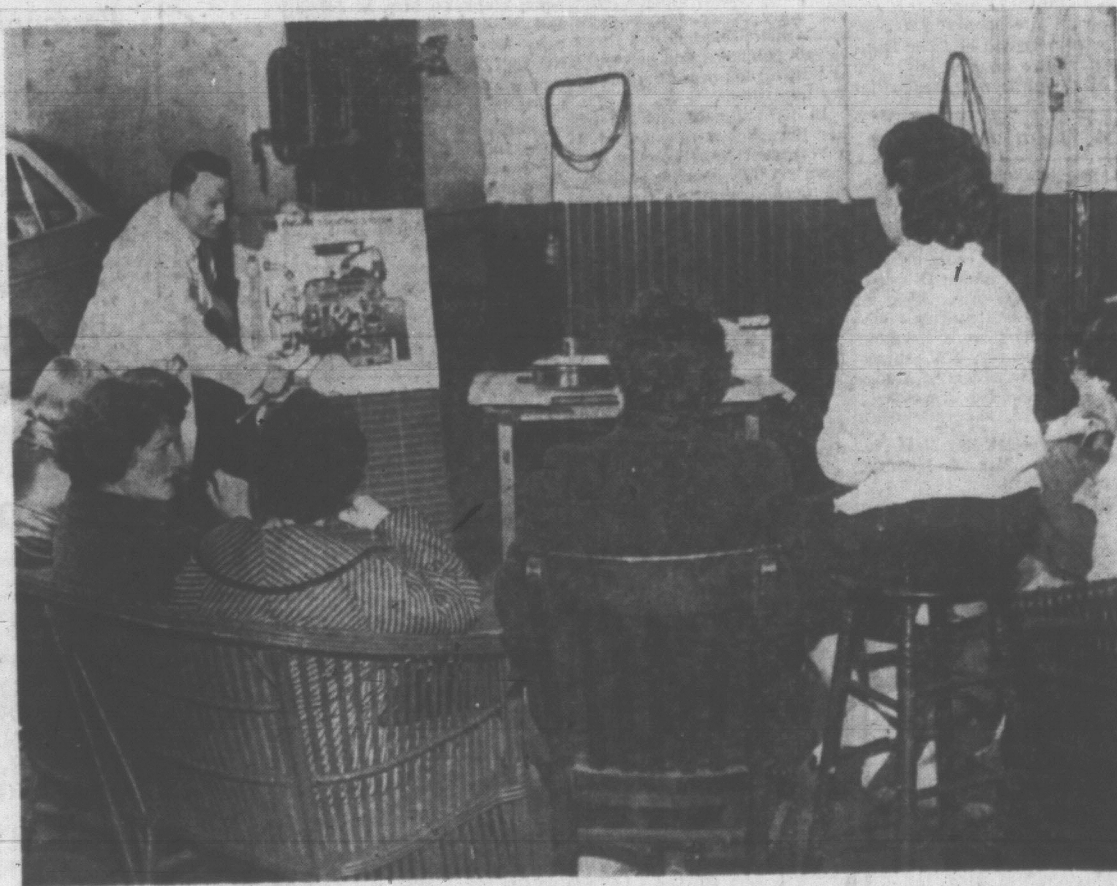

Miss Heather Davidson, left, and Miss Penny Foulkes probe into the intricacies of a car's air cooler. Why did they enroll for the motor mechanics course? Say these mechanically-minded young ladies, "Now we'll be able to make some sort of sense when our boy friends start their car-talk!"

"Don't tell me!" laughs Mrs. R. A. Press, right, as she points out the "creeper" which would have made working on the front end of a car much easier—and cleaner—for Mrs. G. Knight and herself. Mrs. B. Walshaw, left, and Mrs. C. O'Callaghan give moral support and learn a few pointers in readiness for their turn.

Well-Made Hats and Tams Selling for Only a Dollar!

By PENNY SAVER

Due to the fact that one downtown store is discontinuing its line of children's hats you'll be able to get those that were normally priced at $3.95, for $1 as long as supplies last. Bargains include pure wool tams by a well-known manufacturer in either blue, green or navy. Perky little Bretons or tailored boaters that are smartly trimmed with ribbon headband and streamers are also available.

Bretons and boaters are in fur felt and come in either green, scarlet, grey, navy or brown. Hats and tams will fit the average eight-year-old and are an exceptional buy at this low price tag.

Older sisters will fall in love with new line of housecoats I saw being unpacked in another downtown store. Busy mothers will give them a stamp of approval, too, because they're made of sturdy cotton corduroy that, although it has all the glamorous appearance of wool corduroy, is a dream to wash. Housecoats have front button openings, large Peter Pan collars and three-quarter sleeves. Front of collar is highlighted with a crisp self bow and there are handy hidden pockets in side seams.

Selling at $6.95, housecoats are available in small, medium and large sizes. There are fascinating color combinations of blue and green and a delightful model in coral, gold and other rosy tones.

Another new line in housecoats will enrapture teen-agers that want to be frilly and feminine. Lined in rayon taffeta, they're made of flocked nylon in dainty floral patterns. Fall's emphasis on large puff sleeves is shown in these models and wide satin ribbon is used in the bow that trims centre collar. Sparkling rhinestones centre each of the five buttons on the front opening. Housecoats come in blue, pink, yellow and, of course, fashion's favorite, mauve.

Like the cotton corduroy ones, these are completely washable and are available in either small, medium or large. Canadian made, they sell at $10.95.

Gold, Purple, Animal Spots on Top

If you become violent when you see violet, lose your balance when you see spots before your eyes or feel greedy at the sight of gold please ignore fashion this winter.

Purple, the high fashion color; spotted animal prints and the Midas touch of gold are the three scene stealers of the winter fashion story. I saw them everywhere on my holiday trip last month.

In Vancouver at the corner of Georgia and Howe it was full length, straight cut, ocelot coat... selling juicy apples at a roadside stand in Wenatchee, Wash., it was a smiling young lady in a crew-necked, bulky-knit purple sweater... strolling beside a lake near Coeur d'Alene, Ida., were two small boys in tiger print swim trunks... Through Montana there was a riot of gold and crimson, the high fashion shade for trees just before they shed their leaves.

Deep purple frontier pants with matching tailored shirts and a white Stetson made an attractive picture in the dining room of the Irma Hotel in Cody, Wyo. (Incidentally the cowboys and cowgirls do not even remove their Stetsons to eat.) In Sioux Falls, S.D., it was an aluminum Christmas tree which had been sprayed with gold and trimmed with the season's newest chunky gold jewelry.

In Chicago at the Imperial House restaurant all the new winter fashion highlights were included in an informal showing from the Designer Collections of Saks Fifth Avenue. The purple touch... a dress... a slender column of fine wool. The animal print... an airy chiffon cocktail blouse in Dalmatian dots. The golden accent... ropes of golden chains filling in the neckline of a brown silk shirtwaist dress.

In Davenport, Iowa, it was the women's editor of the Morning Democrat in a chic purple floral print raincoat with a long, slender umbrella to match... On the university campus in Lincoln, Neb., it was an all-around pleated skirt in golden wool topped by a long-haired blending sweater... On the highway to Denver, Col., I saw a long, golden silk scarf floating out behind the driver of a smart convertible... In Salt Lake City, Utah, a block-long group of shops with windows presenting "Vintage Tones."

Playing Chopin's Polonaise in the softly lighted dining room of the Riverside Hotel at Reno, Nev., was seven-year-old Ginny Tiu. This petite, fast-rising star of television and supper clubs was wearing a traditional Chinese trouser costume in gold satin embellished with circular happiness symbols.

In Sacramento I saw a pretty dark-haired 18-year-old on her way to church, wearing her first grown-up hat; a simple fez-like style in leopard printed man-made fur.

In San Francisco there was Zsa Zsa Gabor autographing copies of her new book and wearing an enormous stole of Somali leopard over a clinging black wool sheath.

Looks as if you'll have to accept these scene stealers or you'll be right out of the fashion picture this winter.

This eye-catching coat in Somali leopard, high fashion fur of the winter season, is designed with a large cape collar that stands away and frames the face. Shiny golden baubles fill in the neckline and accent the three-quarter-length sleeves.

DEAR ABBY

Truth or Consequences!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a young lady who sent her girl friend's picture instead of her own to a pen pal because she wasn't very pretty.

My problem is the same. Only just the opposite. I sent my picture to a fellow and we realized to correspond. I soon realized that I wasn't as smart as he was, so I got my girl friend to write the letters for me. This fellow and I have been "corresponding" for over a year. We've become quite serious and now he wants to make a trip here to meet me. What should I do?

HAS GHOST WRITER. DEAR HAS: Write your own letter this time and 'fess up. If your ghost writer wants to meet the pen pal she cultivated for you, send him HER picture. If it's YOUR face he values, send HER brains, give up the "ghost" and carry on.

DEAR ABBY: I am an "old-timer" who has started to work with young people on a volunteer basis. I was shocked to discover how many of our children can't read or spell. Some of my youngsters are in the Eighth grade and their writing is so poor you can't read it. Their imaginations are over-developed but when it comes to reading, writing and arithmetic, they are lost. What's wrong with our educational system, I wonder?

OLD-TIMER.

DEAR OLD: We're doing the best we can, but a teacher's pay is so low that only a few dedicated souls are interested in teachers' careers. If I had my way, I'd double all teachers' salaries. Then we'd have plenty of first-rate men and women to educate our children.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your advice on a subject that has caused a heated discussion. When John A. Smith, Jr., the son of John A. Smith, Sr., has a child whom he names after himself, is the child known as John A. Smith III even after the grandfather is deceased?

We were told that it is neither socially nor legally correct to use "III" when the original bearer of the name is dead; that the "Jr." becomes "Sr." and the grandchild (the "III") would become "Jr." Please advise.

JANE. DEAR JANE: The "Jr." becomes "Sr." upon the death of the "Sr."—but the "III" remains the same.

DEAR ABBY: Here is a suggestion for "BIG BUT GRACEFUL" and all other large people who have trouble getting into an automobile. Just place your "dairy-aid" (this is a French word but spelled in English) on the seat first. Then pull your feet in after you. It works every time especially for people who have back trouble.

"ALSO BIG."

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers ALL letters.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Many careful homemakers forget the importance of the medicine chest — it can be a boon or a hazard. Each year many young children die because they got hold of medicines or other items which were poisonous. Even adults sometimes grab the wrong bottle.

Certainly poisons and potent drugs, disinfectants, insecticides and cleaning fluids, should be kept on the top shelf of a closet or in a cabinet which can be locked.

Of course it is a mistake to take medicine in the dark or at any time without looking at the label first. However, if you are one of those who is forgetful or who fumbles about in the middle of the night for medication, you can safeguard yourself by sealing the caps with adhesive tape. That way you will have to notice what you are taking.

We never think that emergencies will happen to us but they do. At such times a well cared for "dicine cabinet is most valuable. This should be checked and groomed periodically.

Many medicines deteriorate in time. Antibiotics often have definite expiration dates. It is also wise to consult your physician for a new prescripto arrange items categorically and place them on different shelves.

'And a medicine cabinet, of all places, should be kept clean and hygienic. Too many of them are loaded with dust. When you rearrange and check yours give the place a good scrubbing, also. Removable shelves can be soaked in soap or detergent suds. If the shelves are not removable you can get into the corners with wall shelves. It is a good idea a well-lathered bottle brush.

Men of Congo Spurn High Wages; Too Many Relatives

By ELIZABETH FORBES

No matter how exciting it may be to sit in on sessions of United Nations General Assembly when world powers are pitted against each other in a battle of words, it is even more interesting to talk to delegates outside the General Assembly and to hear of the peoples they represent.

Forbes

So says Mrs. Phyllis Graveley, executive secretary of the YWCA, recently returned from the General Assembly, where she was an observer on a fellowship from Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. She gathered many stories that bring the peoples of other lands into sharper focus for us.

There's the one about the men of the Congo who do not want increases in pay. (So help me, it's true!)

These men don't work on farms, they leave that to their women folk. If they do consent to do farm work it is only for a day or two at a time. Now that industry is open to them they do not want to work more than a day or two a week and they are not interested in working for salary and don't want increases in pay.

Reason—they would immediately have more relations depending on them to support.

Installment Buying in Ethiopia

Mrs. Graveley has also brought home with her a story about marriage in Ethiopia and the influence of installment buying.

Instead of waiting until they have fully completed traditional payments to the bride's father, young men are now insisting on taking their brides home after an initial payment.

Fathers are complaining that after this first installment, their sons-in-law fail to continue the payments, leading inevitably, as in all installment buying, to the fathers repossessing their daughters when payments are not made on time.

On the other hand, husbands are playing a little game of frightening their wives into submission by threatening to discontinue installments.

As a side issue, fathers are pushing up the price of brides to meet the added risks.

Men Play Flutes in New Guinea

Situation in New Guinea is quite different, Mrs. Graveley tells us. There the Tchambuli tribeswomen have complete domination over their men.

They go off to work and leave their menfolk at home to play their flutes, decorate themselves with flowers and plan amusements to entertain the women when they return, tired and hungry, after a day's work making and mending nets and catching the fish.

Two Canadians Plan 'Junket'

One last story—not culled from Mrs. Graveley's notebook.

Young Canadian friends of mine, by the name of Alec and Mike, plan a junket toward the end of this month that has all the earmarks of frivolity and fun.

They are flying to Toronto to attend the famed St. Andrew's Ball.

My two young friends are brushing up their formal wear, top hats and tailed coats, and one, at least will take with him a crimson satin-lined cape and cane.

They will leave by jet plane from this coast in mid-morning and arrive in Toronto at 3 in the afternoon.

There will be time to buy corsages for their dates and take the two young ladies out for cocktails and dinner before attending the ball. My friends plan to fly home by jet plane the next day.

Ridiculous, isn't it? And yet it's a stunt that's made of dreams and that has this reporter, for one, wishing she was young and foolish again!

Oh There—Get Fell in! The bridegroom is a Guards officer so look lively there! A page boy gives a smart reminder to a gossiping page and bridesmaid to 'get fell in' behind the bride after a wedding at St.

POLICE BALL SOCIAL SUCCESS

The skirl of bagpipes, played by two pipe-majors in full regalia, signalled the beginning of the grand march at the Police Ball, held in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel Friday evening. Leading the dazzling parade was His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Arthur Dowell. Behind them, preceded by Ald. Dowell and Mrs. George E. Pearkes, followed an assembly of guests, so large that the spacious ballroom was crowded to capacity. Members of the Victoria Girls' Drill Team, in their colorful uniforms, acted as markers. Although there seemed to be a trend towards the regal floor-sweeping gown, many attractive gowns in shorter lengths were to be seen. Police officers and their wives from Seattle, Spokane and Portland came to Victoria to help make the ball one of the social highlights of the season.

In HMCS Venture

First social gathering in HMCS Venture this autumn is the commanding officer's get-acquainted dance this evening. Senior gunroom will be decorated in Halloween theme for the occasion. The dance is planned to introduce junior cadets who joined the ship on Sept. 11 to Victoria's younger set. Chairman of the dance committee is Chief Cadet Capt. L. G. McQuarrie.

MACK SENNETT

Film Pioneer Mack Sennett Dies at 76

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Canadian-born film pioneer Mack Sennett, 76, creator of some of the most riotous slapstick ever seen on the screen, died today at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital in nearby Woodland Hills.

He was born Michael Sinnott in Danville, Que., and he was a young man when his family moved to East Berlin, Conn. Against his family's wishes he changed his name to Mack Sennett.

Sennett had been in poor health for some time. He underwent major surgery for kidney stones last year.

A master of comedy, Sennett was the producer who gave the world Charlie Chaplin and W. C. Fields.

His bathing beauties, Keystone cops and pie-throwing actors delighted a generation of moviegoers.

The silhouette of a male pedestrian who "suddenly disappeared" in the path of two oncoming cars was mentioned in B.C. Assize Court Friday afternoon.

Gilbert Heise of 2772 Kingswood, mentioned the silhouette when giving evidence in the trial of James William Hamilton, 20, Victoria motorist charged with causing a death by criminally negligent driving on Goldstream Avenue, last Oct. 1.

Answering crown prosecutor Alan Bigelow, Heise said: "I saw four headlights come around the corner and, as they approached, I saw a pedestrian on my side of the road. The headlights came nearer, and then the pedestrian disappeared."

he only saw the pedestrian for about a second before the accident.

When the hearing adjourned at 4:30 p.m., Mr. Justice T. G. Norris cautioned the witness Dand not to associate or talk to anyone else concerned in the accident.

He gave a similar warning to the 12-man jury.

"We shall have to finish this case on Monday," he said, "and I will ask counsel to have their final arguments ready."

Fire, thought to have been started by faulty electrical wiring, wiped out a kitchen and caused $3,000 estimated damage to a Jubilee area house and furnishings Friday evening.

Burglars Get $295 From News Agency

Cash and cheques valued at $295.77 were stolen in a burglary of Lovick's News Agency, 723 Courtney, overnight Thursday.

City police reported two safes in the building had been tampered with, but neither yielded.

Burglars forced their way into the building by breaking a window on the south side, then broke an office window and jimmied an office door, once they were inside.

Desk drawers were forced open and a metal cash box was taken from a cupboard. Cash amounted to $212.85 and the cheques were worth $82.92.

Money 'No Problem' On Columbia

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lands Minister Ray Williston said Friday even without federal grants, raising $450,000,000 for development of Columbia River power is not an unsolvable problem.

He said at the annual convention of the B.C. Social Credit League there will be no hold-up of the project as far as British Columbia is concerned. Nor will raising of the necessary money over a 10-year period will not hold up the project.

He said British Columbia will need power from the Peace and Columbia rivers in 15 years and he criticized those who had attacked the Peace River plan.

"We need the work, we need everything connected with them. So let's forget this pettyloging and get on with the job."

The federal government offer of a loan of half the cost of Columbia construction at the market rate plus one-eighth of one per cent interest is not good enough, he said. B.C. wanted the same grants as Saskatchewan got for the South Saskatchewan dam.

the Chinese Communist state but his country's No. 2 ideologist after Mao Tse-tung.

The first formal greeting at the airport was extended to him by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

"We stand and will stand together," Liu told the Soviet welcoming party in an airport speech.

Brezhnev, in his response, said solidarity of the Chinese and Soviet Communist parties is "the guarantee of the victory of communism."

Leaders of the Communist world today converged on a gaily-decorated Moscow to celebrate the 43rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution Monday.

The celebrations are expected to be accompanied by a meeting at which the leaders will try to solve the war-or-co-existence differences between Russia and China on the inevitability of war with the West.

Other delegations attending were from Czechoslovakia, Hungary, North Viet Nam, Albania, East Germany and the British Communist party. Yugoslavia was not invited.

Bunting, multi-colored lights and flags hung from houses and festooned the streets here and portraits of the Soviet party presidium were seen on important buildings. The Soviet Union is expected to display some of its rockets in the parade Monday.

Australia's stainless steel plant, opened in New South Wales in 1960 with an initial capacity of 10,000 tons annually, is the only one of its kind in the southern hemisphere.

The home, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Thomas and their five children at 1732 Amphion, caught fire shortly before 6:30 p.m., was noticed first by four-year-old Bobby Thomas, who told his 14-year-old sister Gwen.

She took the boy and their sister Judy, nine, outside and called the fire department from a neighbor's house.

PARENTS ABSENT

Their father is a cook in the research vessel Oshawa; Mrs. Thomas was at work in a downtown store; Carol, 16, and Trevor, 11, were out for the evening when the fire broke out.

There was insurance on the building, which is owned by Central Mortgage and Housing, but none on the contents, which were heavily smoke damaged.

Structural damage was mostly to the kitchen itself, where flames likely were fed by oil from a range.

STOPPED BY HEAT

Thirteen-year-old Donald Day, 1740 Amphion, tried to get into the rear of the house when he saw flames on his way home from a neighborhood park. He was stopped by heat which burst rear windows, but ran in the front door, checked the house for occupants and saved an armload of coats.

His father Reginald went in and took out a television set and vacuum cleaner as other neighbors checked for occupants. One saved a bowl of goldfish.

He said at the annual convention of the B.C. Social Credit League there will be no hold-up of the project as far as British Columbia is concerned. Nor will raising of the necessary money over a 10-year period will not hold up the project.

He said British Columbia will need power from the Peace and Columbia rivers in 15 years and he criticized those who had attacked the Peace River plan.

"We need the work, we need everything connected with them. So let's forget this pettyloging and get on with the job."

The federal government offer of a loan of half the cost of Columbia construction at the market rate plus one-eighth of one per cent interest is not good enough, he said. B.C. wanted the same grants as Saskatchewan got for the South Saskatchewan dam.

BARNABY THORNMBRIDGE

WHAT'S JUMBO UP TO NOW?

CARD TRICKERY

This can be a very impressive card trick. Show five cards. Ask a witness to select one mentally. Place the five in your pocket. You then draw out four cards and throw them face down on the table. Ask the name of the chosen card. When it is given, you bring that card from your pocket. Then turn up the four cards on the table, which appear to be the cards originally pocketed.

Actually, they weren't. The cards you show originally are all diamonds and hearts, ranging in value 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. In your pocket you have OTHER diamonds and hearts that are quite similar. They are the four cards that you bring out first. When you ask the name of the chosen card, you can easily count to it in your pocket, because of the regular rotation of the numbers:

JOKE BETS YOU CAN'T LOSE

Here are some wagers you can't lose:

1. "I bet you can't take your coat off alone."
2. "I bet I can stay under water for a whole minute."
3. "I bet I can write a longer word than you can, no matter what word you write."
4. "I bet I can jump across the street."

Do you know why you can't lose on them?

CAPITAL LETTERS?

You needn't be a veteran traveler to recognize the following European capital cities from their beginnings or ends:

1. _____ has a crazy start.
2. _____ has a fighting start.
3. _____ has a fatherly start.
4. _____ ends with a bovine.
5. _____ ends with poultry.

WALK STRAIGHT AND NARROW

You've heard, of course, of persons being made to walk a chalk-line, but probably you've never tried it. Putting yourself and others to the test can be made an amusing party stunt.

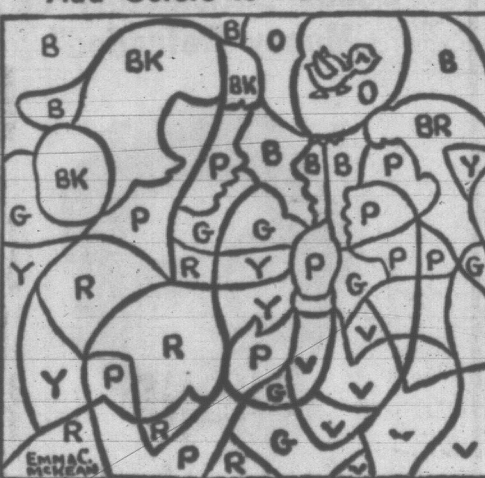

Arrange "racing lanes" with long tapes or strings held down with thumb-tacks or pins. Provide each participant with a pair of binoculars or opera glasses and stand them along a starting line.

Peering through the large end of the binoculars, participants are required to walk "the line" as rapidly as possible as illustrated above.

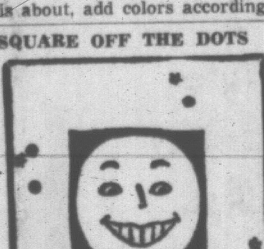

Sighting through the glasses this way causes one's feet to seem far away and makes it extremely difficult to maintain one's balance.

SQUARE OFF THE DOTS

HIDDEN ANIMAL

Draw a replica of the diagram above, about twice the present size. Omit the stars. Then invite someone to draw a perfect square around the square and circle shown in such a way that each side of figure will pass through one of the four heavy dots. Also each corner of the inner square must touch a side of the square drawn.

The puzzle could be solved very easily if it were permissible to construct a square with one side passing through two of the dots. But the solution requires that one dot must be on each side of the square.

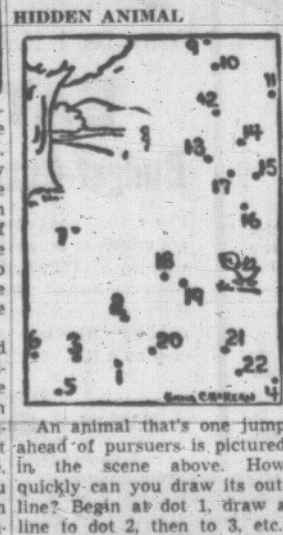

The four stars, which you must be careful to omit from your tracing, indicate the location of the four corners of the solution square.

Landslide Kennedy Victory?

Given Wide Edge In Leading Poll

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Observers here are beginning to talk of a possible landslide victory for Senator Kennedy in Tuesday's presidential election. The Senator was reported to be tired and growing hoarse as he and Vice-President Nixon entered the final days of the grueling campaign trail.

But the news for the Democratic candidate was nearly all good. A nation-wide poll reflecting opinion in late October gave him a 6 per cent margin over Nixon.

Translated into popular votes on election day, this 6 per cent margin would approach the 55 per cent portion of the vote which President Eisenhower received when first elected in 1952.

GOP NOT DISMAYED

Republicans dismissed the poll figures on the ground that the sampling was taken before Nixon's campaign reached its peak. They are placing great store on the effect Eisenhower will have in vigorously pressing his support for Nixon earlier this week before great crowds in New York City and Friday in the heavily populated industrial cities of Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

Reports from Texas Friday spoke of Republican delight there with the sharpness of Nixon's attacks on his opponent.

At the same time, political observers here sensed in Kennedy's latest statements the most openly confident mood he has exhibited throughout the long campaign.

WIRE BRIEFS

Color Bar Ends

KITWE, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—White mine workers Friday night voted to end the color bar in the country's copper mines and finally open the way for Negroes to rise to the top in the rich industry.

Warriors Pull Back

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—A Tunisian contingent of United Nations troops today moved into rebellious south Kasai province and reports reaching here said that Baluba warriors were withdrawing into the jungle.

Iran Prince 'Home'

TEHRAN (UPI)—The five-day-old Crown Prince of Iran was driven home from the hospital today to the cheers of thousands of his subjects.

Killed in Ambush

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist terrorists ambushed and killed a U.S. safety expert and his Vietnamese driver today near the beach resort of Long Hai, 70 miles east of Saigon, the U.S. embassy announced.

Tribal Violence

NAIROBI (Reuters)—One Kikuyu tribesman was speared to death and 10 others were injured today in an outburst of tribal fighting at a mass political meeting at Ngong, 15 miles from Nairobi.

Russian 'Cargo'

Final Campaign Weekend

INSULTS ARE FLYING

NEW YORK (CP)—Verbal brickbats are flying the air as the campaign for the U.S. presidency moved into its last weekend.

Nearly everybody got into the act Friday.

Senator Kennedy, the Democratic candidate, said his opponent, Vice-President Nixon, is trying to ride "someone else's shirttails" into the White House.

President Eisenhower childishly labelled Kennedy "this young genius."

Former Democratic president Harry Truman dismissed Nixon as "a second-rate politician" who should not be exploiting Eisenhower's "remaining energies" in his bid for office.

Nixon called Kennedy a "Jackie-come-lately" and the "pied piper from Boston" whose economic policies "represent the cruelest hoax any politician has ever tried to foist on the American people."

JOHNSON JEERED

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, Kennedy's running mate, ignored some jeering opponents who turned up at a rally at Dallas, Texas, his home state, saying to his wife: "Don't shout back, let everyone see how Nixon runs his campaign."

The candidates hashed over the same issues that have been the crux of their speeches since the start of the campaign. But the language continued to grow stronger as the Nov. 8 voting day drew closer.

Sniping at the Republican campaign claim that not one American soldier has died fighting on foreign soil since the Korean War ended under the Eisenhower administration, Kennedy said in Chicago:

"The real issue is world freedom or world slavery, stopping the Communist advance which in eight years has penetrated deep into Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America—taking over Cuba itself—without firing a single shot or losing a single soldier."

Kennedy, making his first prediction of the campaign, claimed a "Democratic tide is rising" across the country.

Pistol-Packing Pair Held at Kennedy Meet

CHICAGO (UPI)—A young Puerto Rican totting a loaded pistol fought with police at the crowded gates of the Chicago Stadium Friday night when officers blocked his way to a giant rally for Sen. John F. Kennedy.

A second gun carrier was arrested when he tried to enter the stadium with a revolver in a paper bag.

A half-dozen policemen scuffled with the first man, Jaime Cruz Alejandro, 23, before he was disarmed and seized.

Councillor Attacked With Acid

NIPIGON, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police reported today that Dr. E. R. Somerleigh, a Nipigon town councillor, is in a Fort William hospital following an attack Friday night by an unknown assailant who poured acid over his head and face.

The father of five children was attacked in his car immediately after leaving a council meeting in this town 60 miles northwest of the Lakehead, police said.

Dr. Somerleigh was "badly burned" and in danger of "losing his eyesight," police said.

Hospital superintendent R. V. Johnson said Dr. Somerleigh is suffering from burns to the head and face. "His lips, nose and throat are badly swollen and his face darkened," he said. Dr. Somerleigh also is suffering from shock but his general condition is satisfactory, the hospital official added.

The doctor told police he immediately stopped the car and the assailant fled. Police found a 16-ounce bottle in the car still containing some liquid believed to be sulphuric acid. The container and contents have been sent to the provincial crime laboratory in Toronto.

Belgians Wanted

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—The popularity of the United Nations administration in The Congo appears to be slipping fast amid signs that the Congolese want the Belgians to come back.

This may appear ironic in view of the events of last summer. First there were the anti-Belgian independence riots. Then there was the quick reaction of the UN to try to bring order to the former Belgian colony.

One high UN officer who gets around a lot in Leopoldville's African quarter and says he has a finger on grassroots thinking declared: "In less than a month they'll all want the Belgians to return."

U.S. Voices Faith In Belgian Actions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has voiced its confidence in Belgium's "good faith" in the Congo and criticized a UN report on Belgian actions in the strife-torn African nation.

The state department disputed charges by an aide of UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld that Belgian nationals returning to the Congo are stirring up new trouble there.

The department also said the United Nations should get on with the job of improving the Congo's welfare and implied it felt the world organization was meddling in Congo politics and should stop.

The department's statement, read to reporters Friday by press officer Lincoln White,

BANDITS, THUGS, GOONS MAKE HAY IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Fridays, almost a regular field-day for Montreal's underworld, proved no exception this week.

There were six armed holdups, one mugging, and a goon raid on the Chez Paree, a downtown night club, which resulted in $25,000 to $30,000 damage.

The holdups netted bandits a total of $31,800 in cash and cheques but $2,725 was recovered after two suspects were caught by police and taken for questioning.

Nikita Jokes About 'Ouster'

MOSCOW (CP)—Premier Khrushchev made fun today of Western rumors that he had been arrested and deposed.

Smiling broadly as he received Canadian Ambassador David Johnson in the Kremlin, he said: "Well, I am still here."

Johnson told reporters later Khrushchev and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, whom he saw in a separate meeting, appeared highly amused by the rumors.

Johnson said he was interested in the fact that both men were fully informed about them although nothing has been published here.

Khrushchev just made fun of them," Johnson said. "He was in very good humor and looked very well."

Johnson, who is soon leaving Moscow, had requested a farewell appointment with Khrushchev some time ago but had only half an hour's notice when it was finally arranged.

He said he got the impression that Khrushchev had just returned to Moscow today from a brief holiday but said that the Soviet premier did not specifically say so.

Khrushchev earlier today headed the newcomers at Vnukovo airport to greet Chinese President Liu Shao-chi.

This was the Soviet premier's first public appearance in about 10 days.

Ontario Police Alerted

TORONTO (CP)—Six carloads of United States gangsters have crossed into Canada and police throughout southwest Ontario have been asked to watch for them, police said today.

Deputy Chief Bob Kerr of the Metropolitan Toronto police force said his force was tipped that the six cars "crossed into Canada" Friday.

"We want to see the gentlemen," he said.

He said he knew nothing of reports that the gangsters were in Ontario for a conference to discuss the partitioning of Hamilton-Toronto area crime benefits.

"We don't know why they're here," he said. "Maybe they're visiting friends or attending a funeral."

The Hamilton Spectator earlier today said a "little Appalachian" gangster conference was being held and that Hamilton police were watching for the cars.

The newspaper said the police handled the tip so carefully that the car descriptions were not broadcast in the usual manner.

MET IN 1957

It was three years ago this month that the notorious gangster conference was held in the little town of Appalachin, N.Y. Twenty of the 63 in attendance were imprisoned and fined a total of $130,000 after being found guilty of concealing the true purpose of the gathering.

The Hamilton newspaper quoted Deputy Chief Joseph Thurston of Metropolitan Toronto police as saying that every member of the Toronto force had been given the licence numbers and a full description of the wanted vehicles.

Toronto Police Chief James Mackey said none of the persons being sought here was known to have attended the U.S. crime conference at Appalachin. No names were mentioned.

Border officials said the six cars "looked like they had just been driven out of an expensive showroom."

One was reported to have Pennsylvania licence plates, one New Jersey, one Maryland and three Ohio tags.

Deputy Chief Kerr declined to disclose the route by which the cars entered Canada or who had provided information on them.

'SECOND LOOK' IN CARTOONS

Barron's New Book Goes on Sale Monday

Sid Barron's second annual cartoon book, which investigates some of the peculiar aspects of Victorians, will go on general sale Monday.

The cartoons, selected from those which have appeared in The Times during the last year, are published under the title "Barron's Victoria."

This year's edition is entitled "A Second Look." The booklets, priced at $1, will appear in major book-stalls and newsstands Monday and by the end of the week will be in full circulation.

As a special attraction during next week the cartoonist will appear personally at two events to autograph copies.

First occasion will be at Oak Bay High School's Fall Fair on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The whole theme of the fair is based on the strange characters Barron produces.

A stall will be set up with the books on sale, with retail proceeds going to help the funds of the fair.

On Thursday evening, Mr. Barron will be at Eaton's Ltd. bookstall where he will sign copies. Stores are open Thursday night because of the Friday holiday.

Meanwhile mail orders for the books are still open. A convenient coupon for ordering appears on Page 3.

Victorians Favor Kennedy for President 8 to 1 Over Nixon

It's a landslide for Kennedy, according to a Victoria poll taken by the Times.

Victorians polled favor John Kennedy 8 to 1 over Richard Nixon, in Tuesday's U.S. presidential election.

MONTE ROBERTS

It is reassuring to note the sane, sensible citizens of this, the fairest city of them all, have accepted the news of increased plane fares to Vancouver with very little running around in the streets screaming "the sky is falling."

In fact, the average reaction appears to be "Izzatso? Who's going to win the Grey Cup?"

My personal reaction is not quite the same as that of the sane, sensible citizens.

My reaction is one of great enthusiasm.

For years I have been able to save only five dollars by not taking the plane to Vancouver.

Now I can save SEVEN dollars by not taking the plane to Vancouver!

Imagine, all the pleasure of not going to Vancouver, and at the same time saving SEVEN dollars!

I have often planned trips to Vancouver with only one objective in mind; to find a reason to cancel the trip and savor the fact I have once more failed to go to Vancouver.

Those of us who get innocent amusement out of not going to Vancouver never had it so good.

There are so many ways to not go to Vancouver, even in the off-season, like:

We can not go by not driving up the Malahat and not boarding a CPR ship at Nanaimo or a Black Ball Ferry at Departure Bay.

We can not go by not driving to Swartz Bay and ignoring Mv. Sidney or Mv. however-do-you-spell-it?

We can not go by avoiding Washington States ferries scenic route through the San Juan Islands, or we can even not go right from the Inner Harbor by not catching Black Ball Transport's Mv. Coho (lots of us are good at not catching cohos) and not driving down the Olympic Peninsula.

Pretty soon, maybe, we will be able to not go to Vancouver via Bellingham in a 40-mile-per-hour hydrofoil.

Never before in history have the kindly transportation companies offered so many alternate ways to not go to Vancouver.

Now Trans-Canada Air Lines has come along and added a bonus, an extra saving of two dollars every time we non-goers don't go.

It wouldn't surprise me at all to see all the other transportation companies follow suit, raise their rates, and make it financially possible to live in this, the fairest city of them all.

Bless you, T. C. and also A.

A number of people queried said that when the campaign started they thought Nixon was the winner. But the charm, confidence, sudden maturity of Kennedy has swung their opinions.

Another factor, they say, is the traditional tendency to favor Democrats in Canada.

But, wishful thinking aside, the majority felt that Kennedy had been able to sell himself to the American public more successfully.

Nixon's image, said one, was "untrustworthy."

Only one person mentioned the issue of religion—Kennedy is a Catholic—and he thought it had not materialized to the extent expected.

Here are the verdicts:

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, chairman, B.C. Power Commission: "I think the likelihood is that Kennedy will win. On the whole, the country is normally Democrat."

Nixon is obviously less attractive to Democrats and "to liberals than Eisenhower."

Conway Parrot, Vancouver Island Coach Lines president: "We in Canada are so seriously affected by the choice of president, a win for Kennedy would be in Canada's interest."

Arthur H. Cox, insurance man, long-time political campaigner: "Kennedy put on a good hard campaign and it appears the church has withdrawn any antagonism."

Colin Graham, Art Gallery curator: "The obvious choice . . . Kennedy will show growing stature under experience."

Hon. R. W. Mayhew, former federal cabinet minister and diplomat: "I think Nixon is going to win. He has had more experience and turned out very well. Kennedy will be all right with another four years under his belt."

Harold Husband, shipbuilder: "It's very difficult to predict . . . both very able debaters and very capable men. It's very even."

Allan Pendray, president of paint firm: "It looks like Kennedy to me. In the last week or ten days there's been a swing to him."

Harry Hodges, former newspaper editor: "Kennedy. If it's going to be a Democratic Congress what's the good of another Republican president? It's better for Canada to have a Democrat."

Aubrey Kent, president, Chamber of Commerce: "Kennedy has a bit of an edge. It will be a close election. I was leaning to Nixon to begin with, but Kennedy has had the most emphatic program . . . and more dramatic appeal to the masses."

Willard Ireland, provincial archivist: "It will be Kennedy. The Republican party won under a name, and Mr. Nixon hasn't got that name. A Democrat doesn't have to have a name."

SILVER WINGS of a United Airlines stewardess have been won by Marie D. Allin, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Smith, 1155 Wychbury Ave., after training at the stewardess school in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Miss Allin is serving on aircraft flying out of Los Angeles.

BIG JUMP OVER LAST YEAR

Over 3 Million Visited Parks

More than 3,100,000 people visited B.C.'s parks this summer.

Preliminary figures compiled by the recreation department show a total of 2,444,000 visits to camp and picnic sites, plus 660,000 overnight visits to camps.

This year's season—from April 1 to Sept. 30—shows a big jump in park use from 1959, when a total of 2,700,000 visits was recorded.

The increase is partly due to a number of new camp and picnic sites opened during the year, an official of the parks branch of the recreation department said today.

They include 50 camp and 20 picnic sites at Bamberton Park and 150 picnic sites at Sproat Lake on Vancouver Island.

ON THE NOSE

"In 1956 we predicted there would be 3,000,000 visits by this year," said the parks official. This represents a one-third increase in use of parks since then. The total visits in '56 was 2,000,000.

The big drawing card in the province is Cultus Lake in the Fraser Valley. It had a total of 440,000 visits this year.

SECOND

The Island's Miracle Beach is number two, with 173,000 total visits.

Next come Alouette Lake, 127,000; Shuswap Lake, 125,000; and Goldstream Park, on the Island, with 118,000.

There are 183 parks in the province, covering 8,400,000 acres. There are 2,800 camp sites.

DR. HITSCHMANOVA . . . one-woman drive

'REACHING FOR SUN'

Relief Campaigner To Show Film Here

Canada's "one-woman relief campaign," Dr. Lottia Hitschmanova, will visit Victoria Nov. 24 and show a new color film of her work in the Far East, at the Ingraham Hotel on Douglas Street.

The film, entitled "Reaching for the Sun," was made by a young Toronto couple who accompanied Dr. Hitschmanova on her mission and contributed their work, on an anonymous basis, to the United Nations Service cause.

Also on display at the Nov. 24 meeting will be the dolls made by Victoria teen-agers under the Hudson's Bay Company's Teen program.

DOLLS FOR ORPHANS

Some 300 dolls will be shipped to Korea for distribution to orphans through Dr. Hitschmanova's group.

The meeting, to which the public is invited, will start at 8 p.m. Co-hosts for the evening will be Howard McKay, manager of HBC, and Stuart Keate, publisher of the Times, which has for eight years conducted Christmas campaigns in behalf of USC relief work.

Magistrate Too Upset To Hear Case

Disturbed and annoyed by a young man's defence of a charge of drinking in public, Magistrate William Ostler disqualified himself Friday from hearing the trials of three others who have pleaded guilty to the same offence.

Hans W. F. van Leeuwen, 1253 Hastings, was fined $50 or 30 days at hard labor when he was found guilty of drinking beer in a car parked atop Gonzales Hill, in Walbran Park.

His trial in Oak Bay police court was the first of four which were slated to be heard, but now the trials of Donald Nelson, Beryl Fisher and Lucille Young must be heard by another magistrate.

All were remanded to Nov. 18 for trial.

Mr. Ostler said, after finding inconsistencies in the accused Leeuwen's story, that he would be biased toward the others if he were to judge them.

FROM THE PRESS GALLERY

PGE Post Hinted for Defeated Minister

New job for Labor-Transport-Railways Minister Lyle Wicks must be lined up before Premier W. A. C. Bennett "adjusts" his cabinet—and the right job may be nearly sewn up.

The Social Credit convention ending in Vancouver tonight could speed the decision.

It's said the railway minister could shunt gracefully into the Pacific Great Eastern government-owned line.

Opening the gate would be Einar Gunderson, who'll probably be running as a Social in a federal by-election for Esquimalt-Saanich. Win or lose, the PGE vice-president could step down for Wicks, and still find a niche among the Wenner-Gren interests such as the Pacific Northern Railway. (Gunderson is a Wenner-Gren B.C. Development Co. director.)

The other defeated cabinet minister, Newton P. Steacy, is not expected to return to his office after a month-long trip east. (He missed the Soered whoop-de-do this weekend.)

Legislative corridors are full of new faces these days. MLAs sworn into office by clerk of the House Ed DeBeck include Waldo Skillings, Jim Rhodes and Ray Perreault, newcomers for Soered, CCF and Liberals, now entitled to legislative seats.

"It's a relief after sitting in the visitors' gallery," said Perreault.

On the scene Monday will be Hugh Shantz, Speaker. He'll be sworn in as North Okanagan MLA, but there are reports he won't be Speaker again.

Victoria branch, B.C. Government Employees' Association is holding annual elections soon. Nominations for executive must be in by Nov. 15.

Former president Larry Huck, who resigned because of political implications of affiliation of BGEA and B.C. Federation of Labor, said "I won't run again."

Evidently popular member of the cabinet with civil servants is Works Minister W. N. Chait.

LYLE WICKS . . . new line?

PNR Holdup May Result In New Laws

By FRANK RUTTER, Times Legislative Reporter

New legislation is expected at the next B.C. session to untangle the wrangle around the Pacific Northern Railway.

Meanwhile work on the railway is stalled for the winter.

It appears that amendments to the Public Utilities Act and the Railway Act are the only answers to a legal battle now stalled before the courts and the cabinet.

The cabinet has been left with the thorny dilemma: Is the PNR a public utility in fact, and has it started work on a public utility?

LARGER STAKES

Far more than the PNR is really at stake.

The power of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission and the government to regulate railways, pipelines and other services is affected.

The key to the entire issue is the definition of a public utility.

The PNR claims it is not one, and is subject only to the Railway Act.

The PUC claims it is and is subject to its jurisdiction—involving a public hearing on PNR plans.

APPEAL DELAYED

The B.C. Appeal Court has delayed hearing an appeal by the PNR against the finding of the PUC that it is a public utility.

The excuse for the delay is that the cabinet hasn't issued an order following up the PUC finding, made after a public hearing Oct. 4.

The cabinet is on the spot—it will either offend the PUC, or the railway, and the backers of the huge Peace River hydro project, the Wenner-Gren interests.

The PUC claims all railways and pipelines must apply to it for a certificate before start-

Shortly before noon a Hume Rumble electric line employee, Charles H. Claydon, 34, of 1314 Finlayson, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for a dog bite received when he tried to inform the dog's master of a proposed power cut during line work in the area.

The line foreman took Claydon to hospital with scratches after he was bitten at 911 Richmond.

Thomas Edward Swift, HMCS Naden, was fined $50 and $5 costs when he pleaded guilty in Colwood RCMP court Friday with drinking liquor in public.

Speaker will be A. V. Parmenter, regional superintendent of Indian Schools.

A full program is lined up for the next general meeting of the local branch, Canadian Authors' Association, in the Douglas Building Restaurant, Thursday at 8 p.m.

All writers will be welcome to attend the meeting which will feature a talk by Frederick White, head of the circulation department, Victoria Public Library, on "Markets for Writers."

In addition, Robert H. Savery, head of the landscape and architecture division of the B.C. department of public works, will discuss "The ancient and honorable art of heraldry, heraldic ornament and illumination."

Impressions of a first visit of Scotland will be given by D. W. Dysart at a meeting of the Burns Club of Victoria in Holyrood House, Tuesday, at 8 p.m.

Miss Georgina Harper will be the featured soloist at the meeting.

Macaulay School PTA meets in the school on Tuesday at 8 p.m., when the principal, Arthur Isaacson, will discuss report cards.

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, regional representative, will present a humorous program, assisted by Mrs. Irene Byers, Ronald Digby and Sidney Wigen.

Date for a preliminary hearing on a criminal negligence charge arising from a double highway fatality at Glen Lake last month was set at Nov. 24 in Colwood RCMP court Friday.

William John Stewart, 47, Kemp Lake Road, was charged after a crash which killed brothers Jack and Tom Cameron, of Colwood, early on Oct. 21.

The hearing will be at 10 a.m. at Colwood RCMP detachment.

ELECTRICAL planning engineer for B.C. Power Commission, Neil A. Magrath, will read a paper to the Vancouver branch, American Institute of Electrical Engineers Monday on "Planning Large Electrical Transmission Networks."

Magrath is an expert in both technical and economic aspects of transmission networks.

DRIVER FINED IN BATTLE OF 'CADDIES'

Motorist Arthur John Shaffer, 2810 Queenston, was fined $50 and his licence was suspended, following collision of two "caddies" on Beach at Newport recently.

Shaffer was charged in Oak Bay police court Friday with careless driving after his car—a "Caddie"—was in collision with a golf "caddie" cart being trundled across Beach by a golfer.

Police said Shaffer approached the golfer, who was in a group, blew his horn and kept going at a speed estimated at 35-40. At that point Beach runs through part of Victoria Golf Club course.

U.S. Voices Faith In Belgian Actions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has voiced its confidence in Belgium's "good faith" in the Congo and criticized a UN report on Belgian actions in the strife-torn African nation.

The state department disputed charges by an aide of UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld that Belgian nationals returning to the Congo are stirring up new trouble there.
